CLERGY DENOUNCE THE WILD WOMEN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 9.—Ravages of the suffragette "furies" as the militants are now called, have aroused public feeling to such a pitch that it is expected the session of parliament which began today will take action designed to curb the growing violence of the women.

One of the peculiar features of the suffrage situation is the attitude adopted by many clergymen. Destruction of church edifices and interruption of divine services have worked up the clergy to such a state of wrath that many have written open letters to the press advocating that militants be allowed to starve themselves to death in prison.

The Rev. A. J. Waldron, vicar of St. Matthew's Church, Brixton, said: "I do not believe in forcible feeding. If a law-breaking woman wants to commit suicide in jail by starving herself to death she should be allowed to do so. Such action on the part of the public officials could be carried out without any twinge of conscience. These women have no regard for the law of the land. Nothing is sacred to them. They would destroy a church and the sacred and holy relics that are contained in churches just as quickly as they would break a window. It does not appeal to them as sacrilegious to interrupt church services with their screams and taunts."

"These women have lost all decent sense of modesty. They respect nothing and no person. They should be allowed to punish themselves if they want to."

Fifty police and detectives were on duty in Parliament square to prevent suffragettes from getting into Parliament building and to prevent assaults upon cabinet ministers.

SAFE AND SANE FOURTH OF JULY

The plans for holding the first safe and sane patriotic observance of Independence Day was undertaken in earnest by the general committee of fifty held on Monday evening at the Knights of Columbus home on Broadway. The observance will be conducted on the broadest lines and the program will be of the deepest interest to every resident old and young of the city. From beginning to end the celebration will be devoid of sectarian lines and it will also in the strictest sense be non-political.

Invitations have been sent to all city officials, city boards, secret societies, lodges, clubs, firemen association and fraternal societies asking for their co-operation. All the people of the city will be welcomed to share in the event. Steps have been taken to have all the school children of the city present and rehearsals of patriotic songs will occur before the date of the celebration.

Mayor Canfield has been invited to preside and Muller's Band of thirty pieces has been engaged for the event. Reading of the Declaration of Independence together with a program of speakers including Dr. John G. Coyle of New York city will be announced later.

The following committees have the affair in charge: General committee, Recorder Grogan, chairman, John F. Feltman, secretary; executive committee, William O'Reilly, Thomas J. Murphy, E. Frank Flanagan, and Peter J. Halloran; music and school committee, Joseph P. Sullivan, Vincent A. Gorman, Frank L. Meagher, Charles J. Weiss, Professor William H. Reiser, and Professor William F. Kelly; committee on speakers, William Dugan, John B. Rafferty, John Cronin; committee on invitations, John J. Campbell, M. Brynes, John P. Feltman; committee on grounds, William B. Martin, William D. DIVA NAMES OTHER WOMAN IN DIVORCE SUIT.

(First Photograph of Mrs. Catherine Dean, "the Other Woman," in the Famous Schuman-Heink Divorce Case and the Two Principals.)

Chicago, June 9.—Kisses in the dark and night gown parades as relief from the arduous occupation of being a great singer's husband were related on the stand in Judge Sullivan's court in the divorce suit of Mrs. Schuman-Heink against William Rapp, Jr. They were detailed by Miss Frances J. J. Ashton, a private nurse, believed to be "the private detective," who lived with Mrs. Catherine Dean in New York. Miss Ashton told of Rapp and Mrs. Dean having spats and then "making up" in the dark, while Mrs. Dean was garbed in a night gown and Rapp in a bath robe.

HEADQUARTERS OF "FURIES" RAIDED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 9.—By a clever coup Scotland Yard today captured the secret headquarters of the militant suffragettes from which the "furies" have been directing their destructive campaigns since strict police surveillance was placed over the offices of the Women's Social and Political Union.

Leaders of the militants had rented rooms in Tuthill street, Westminster, where they carried on all the clerical work relating to their engagements in violence.

The women cleverly disguised the nature of the offices and it was only by accident that the Scotland Yard detectives learned of the place.

Detectives found the secret office by trailing a well known militant leader, who was suspected of being involved in a plot to do personal violence to King George.

The police did not act at once when they made their important discovery until a number of women were in the offices. The raid was made this afternoon and caused much excitement in the neighborhood. The authorities seized many books and documents and it is believed that criminal prosecutions will be started against those whose names appear on the contribution books. The police also found that high wages are being paid to women engaged in the dangerous work of burning buildings and fighting policemen.

Schumann-Heink Divorce Granted. By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 9.—Mrs. Schumann-Heink was today granted a divorce from her husband, William Rapp, Jr., by a jury in Judge Sullivan's court.

NEW PALTZ WATER PLANS APPROVED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, June 9.—The state conservation commission has approved of the proposed system of water supply for New Paltz. The village proposes to purchase the property of the New Paltz Water Works Company, including a farm of 127 acres, on which the reservoirs are constructed and rights of way for its pipe lines. This property is to be bought for $42,000 and an additional $7,500 is to be expended in cleaning up the existing basins and in installing meters on the connections in the village. The village also seeks the right at a future date to construct storage reservoirs upon this land now owned by the water company. The conservation commission stipulates that the village shall at once make application to the state department of health for the enactment of suitable rules for the sanitary protection of the watershed in question.

ASTOR YACHT CREW HAVE LIVELY TIME

The yacht Noma, which brought Vincent Astor and his bride back from Bermuda on Sunday night, anchored off Ferncliff during the night. On Monday afternoon John Lynn, the popular commander of the tug John D. Schoonmaker, went to the Rondout creek where she will undergo repairs to boilers and coal bunkers at the Cornell shops. During the evening some of the crew, who had shore leave, after a long sea voyage, got boisterous after imbibing of the stuff that inebriates and proceeded to beat up a colored man on the Strand, apparently for no cause at all. The colored man was said to have been painfully injured though not seriously, and went home unaided. No arrests were made as the assault took place in a secluded spot free from observation and the matter has not yet been brought to the attention of the police. The members of the crew of the Noma denied the stories that the Noma had a serious fire while at Bermuda and say the dispatches sent out were greatly exaggerated.

LABOR TROUBLES SPREAD IN ITALY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rome, June 9.—The labor troubles which have followed the killing of four persons in the anarchistic demonstrations in Ancona are paralyzing industries throughout Italy. Workmen in all the principal cities obeyed the strike order of the Radical Socialists today.

Precautionary measures are being taken by the government in all parts of the kingdom. Troops are being massed at points where violence is most likely to occur and the Quirinal, the official residence of King Victor Emmanuel in this city, is under a heavy guard.

Street railway and cab traffic was seriously crippled in this and other cities and foreign tourists had a difficult time making their way around. Many printers have joined the walk-out and numerous newspapers were unable to get out their editions today. Clerks are joining the strike, necessitating the closing of stores.

The situation was discussed at a meeting of the cabinet and it was decided to deal sternly with the radicals if they precipitate fresh disorders.

The principal fear of the government is that the railroad employees will join the strike thus tying up completely passenger and freight traffic throughout Italy. For several months the employees of the railway lines, which are owned by the state, have been grumbling and threatening to strike for more money and shorter working hours.

Piano Recital

A number of pupils of Arthur H. Snyder's piano class will give a piano recital at Mr. Snyder's music studio, No. 85 John street, on the evening of Friday, June 19, at eight o'clock. The program, which will be announced later, will consist of piano solos and duets and the pupils will be assisted by Mrs. Arthur H. Snyder, Arthur M. Rifenburg and Mr. Snyder, who will vary the program with vocal duets and trios. If time permits, Mr. Snyder will also give a brief historical sketch on "Music in Mayflower Days."

Musical prizes will be awarded all those pupils who have been successful in keeping up with regular lessons from September last to this June, inclusive. As usual, each pupil may invite to the recital one or two members of the family or friends. This same privilege of the informal invitation is also extended to the pupils who are unable to prepare for the recital.

STATION BANDIT TO BE SENTENCED

Frank Costello, the seventeen year old desperado from New York city who pleaded guilty on Saturday to an indictment found by the grand jury charging him with holding up and attempting to rob Station Agent Abner Freer of Marlborough, will be sentenced on Wednesday by Judge Hassbrouck. The crime to which Costello pleaded guilty was a singularly bold and daring one and was committed on Sunday, April 19, of this year. Costello did not attempt his hold up of Mr. Freer until after the last train of the night passed Marlborough, when he entered the station and pulled a gun on Mr. Freer and then ordered him to open the money drawer which was an old fashioned affair, opening with a spring which rings a bell. The drawer was slightly out of order when Freer, at the point of the desperado's pistol, pulled it open, and Costello reached over and in pulling it further open it fell to the floor and a quantity of change was spilled on the floor. Costello had already stuffed the bills in his pockets but not wanting to lose the change that had dropped on the floor he stooped down to pick it up still keeping Mr. Freer covered with his gun. In reaching for a coin that had rolled under the counter Costello swerved his arm slightly and Mr. Freer seizing his chance picked up the ticket stamper and brought it down on Costello's head. In the melee that followed Costello managed to fire twice but neither bullet did any damage, flying wild. While the struggle was under way Freer heard the screech of a locomotive whistle and recalled that a freight train was nearly due and he managed to pull the signal switch which caused the engineer to stop the train and the trainmen running in the station soon aided Freer in overpowering Costello, who was locked up and upon being arraigned later was held to await the action of the grand jury.

FEINBERG TRIAL NOW IN PROGRESS

The trial of Abram Feinberg, who was indicted on a charge of keeping a disorderly house at New Paltz by the grand jury last May, was taken up this morning in county court and continued this afternoon. The case gives every indication of being one of the most hotly contested legal battles that has taken place in some time. Feinberg is defended by a brilliant array of legal talent, his attorneys being Augustus H. Van Buren with Rose & Brooks of counsel. District Attorney Cunningham with Assistant District Attorney Traver is prosecuting Feinberg. The spicy features of the case attracted a large number of spectators to the court room and every seat was occupied when the trial started. A large number of young girls from 17 to 18 years of age are mixed up in the case, and it is their testimony that is expected to be of the spicy variety.

The district attorney outlined in his opening speech the nature of the case and the difficulties the prosecution would encounter in proving its case as most of the witnesses were hostile to the district attorney's office and only were present to testify because they had been compelled to be present.

The morning session was taken up with the testimony of a man named Freer, Albert Fowler, Kate Rose and Hazel Wager.

Albert Fowler, 18 years old of New Paltz, was the next witness called. Fowler testified to going to the hotel where he met Harry Feinberg, the defendant's son, who was tending bar and that he met Hazel Wager and Mabel Van Leuven. When asked what transpired he refused to answer on the grounds that it would incriminate him. Fowler acknowledged that when the case was first noted for trial shortly after the indictment had been found he had slipped away and gone to Poughkeepsie where he had remained until he had heard that the case had been put over the term.

Freer testified that Feinberg had threatened to have him arrested if he gave any testimony that was damaging to him. From the questions put to both Freer and Fowler by the defendant's attorneys on cross examination to the effect that Feinberg was not in the hotel nights it would seem to indicate that there was some probability of trying to establish an alibi in that Feinberg was not aware of what was going on at the hotel.

Kate Rose, a slim young girl who was sixteen years of age at the time the indictment was found against Feinberg, testified to events at the hotel. She was not questioned by the defendant's attorneys.

Hazel Wager, who was about 18 years of age at the time of occurrence, refused damaging testimony that she had given before the grand jury and said that it was not true. A few of the young girls who were mentioned some of whom were present in the court room were Mabel Van Leuven, Angeline Keyser, Ruth Wager, Hazel Wager, May Sheeley, Hattie Miller, Mattie Van Demark and Kate Rose.

The plans for holding the first safe and sane patriotic observance of Independence Day was undertaken in earnest by the general committee of fifty held on Monday evening at the Knights of Columbus hall on Broadway. The observance will be conducted on the broadest lines and the program will be of the deepest interest to every resident old and young of the city. From beginning to end the celebration will be devoid of sectarian lines and it will also in the strictest sense be non-political.

Invitations have been sent to all city officials, city boards, secret societies, lodges, clubs, firemen associations and fraternal societies asking for their co-operation. All the people of the city will be welcomed to share in the event. Steps have been taken to have all the school children of the city present and rehearsals of patriotic songs will occur before the date of the celebration.

Mayor Canfield has been invited to preside and Muller's Band of thirty pieces has been engaged for the event. Reading of the Declaration of Independence together with a program of speakers including Dr. John G. Coyle of New York city will be announced later.

The following committees have the affair in charge: General committee, Recorder Grogan, chairman, John F. Feltman, secretary; executive committee, William O'Reilly, Thomas J. Murphy, E. Frank Flanagan, and Peter J. Halloran; music and school committee, Joseph F. Sullivan, Vincent A. Gorman, Frank L. Meagher, Charles J. Weiss, Professor William H. Reiser, and Professor William F. Kelly; committee on speakers, William Dugan, John R. Rafferty, John Cronin; committee on invitations, John J. Campbell, M. Brynes, John F. Feltman; committee on grounds, William B. Martin, William D. CLERGY DENOUNCE THE WILD WOMEN

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, June 9.—Ravages of the suffragette "furies" as the militants are now called, have aroused public feeling to such a pitch that it is expected the session of parliament which began today will take action designed to curb the growing violence of the women.

One of the peculiar features of the suffrage situation is the attitude adopted by many clergymen. Destruction of church edifices and interruption of divine services have worked up the clergy to such a state of wrath that many have written open letters to the press advocating that militants be allowed to starve themselves to death in prison.

The Rev. A. J. Waldron, vicar of St. Matthew's Church, Brixton, said: "I do not believe in forcible feeding. If a law-breaking woman wants to commit suicide in jail by starving herself to death she should be allowed to do so. Such action on the part of the public officials could be carried out without any twinge of conscience. These women have no regard for the law of the land. Nothing is sacred to them. They would destroy a church and the sacred and holy relics that are contained in churches just as quickly as they would break a window. It does not appeal to them as sacrilegious to interrupt church services with their screams and taunts."

"These women have lost all decent sense of modesty. They respect nothing and no person. They should be allowed to punish themselves if they want to."

Fifty police and detectives were on duty in Parliament square to prevent suffragettes from getting into Parliament building and to prevent assaults upon cabinet ministers.

DIVA NAMES OTHER WOMAN IN DIVORCE SUIT.

(First Photograph of Mrs. Catherine Dean, "the Other Woman," in the Famous Schuman-Heink Divorce Case and the Two Principals.)

Chicago, June 9.—Kisses in the dark and night gown parades as relief from the arduous occupation of being a great singer's husband were related on the stand in Judge Sullivan's court in the divorce suit of Mme. Schuman-Heink against William Rapp, Jr. They were detailed by Miss Frances J. Ashton, a private nurse, believed to be "the private detective," who lived with Mrs. Catherine Dean in New York. Miss Ashton told of Rapp and Mrs. Dean having spats and then "making up" in the dark, while Mrs. Dean was garbed in a night gown and Rapp in a bath robe.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, June 9.—By a clever coup Scotland Yard today captured the secret headquarters of the militant suffragettes from which the "furies" have been directing their destructive campaigns since strict police surveillance was placed over the offices of the Women's Social and Political Union.

Leaders of the militants had rented rooms in Tutill street, Westminster, where they carried on all their clerical work relating to their engagements in violence.

The women cleverly disguised the nature of the offices and it was only by accident that the Scotland Yard detectives learned of the place.

Detectives found the secret office by trailing a well known militant leader, who was suspected of being involved in a plot to do personal violence to King George.

The police did not act at once when they made their important discovery but waited until a number of women were in the offices. The raid was made this afternoon in the neighborhood. The authorities seized many books and documents and it is believed that criminal prosecutions will be started against those whose names appear on the contribution books. The police also found that high wages are being paid to women engaged in the dangerous work of burning buildings and fighting policemen.

NEW PALTZ WATER PLANS APPROVED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, June 9.—The state conservation commission has approved of the proposed system of water supply for New Paltz. The village proposes to purchase the property of the New Paltz Water Works Company, including a farm of 127 acres, on which the reservoirs are constructed and rights of way for its pipe lines. This property is to be bought for $42,000 and an additional $7,500 is to be expended in cleaning up the existing basins and in installing meters on the connections in the village. The village also seeks the right at a future date to construct storage reservoirs upon this land now owned by the water company. The conservation commission stipulates that the village shall at once make application to the state department of health for the enactment of suitable rules for the sanitary protection of the watershed in question.

ASTOR YACHT CREW HAVE LIVELY TIME

The yacht Noma, which brought Vincent Astor and his bride back from Bermuda on Sunday night, anchored off Ferncliff during the night. On Monday afternoon John Lynn, the popular commander of the tug John D. Schoonmaker, went to Ferncliff and piloted the Noma into the Rondout creek where she will undergo repairs to boilers and coal bunkers at the Cornell shops. During the evening some of the crew, who had shore leave, after a long sea voyage, got boisterous after imbibing of the stuff that inebriates and proceeded to beat up a colored man on the Strand, apparently for no cause at all. The colored man was said to have been painfully injured though not seriously, and went home unaided. No arrests were made as the assault took place in a secluded spot free from observation and the matter has not yet been brought to the attention of the police. The members of the crew of the Noma denied the stories that the boat and crew were while at Bermuda and say that the crew sent out were greatly disgraced.

LABOR TROUBLES SPREAD IN ITALY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Rome, June 9.—The labor troubles which have followed the killing of four persons in the anarchistic demonstrations in Ancona are paralyzing industries throughout Italy. Workmen in all the principal cities obeyed the strike order of the Radical Socialists today.

Precautionary measures are being taken by the government in all parts of the kingdom. Troops are being massed at points where violence is most likely to occur and the Quirinal, the official residence of King Victor Emmanuel in this city, is under a heavy guard.

Street railway and cab traffic was seriously crippled in this and other cities and foreign tourists had a difficult time making their way around. Many printers have joined the walk-out and numerous newspapers were unable to get out their editions today. Clerks are joining the strike, necessitating the closing of stores.

The situation was discussed at a meeting of the cabinet and it was decided to deal sternly with the radicals if they precipitate fresh disorder.

The principal fear of the government is that the railroad employees will join the strike thus tying up completely passenger and freight traffic throughout Italy. For several months the employees of the railway lines, which are owned by the state, have been grumbling and threatening to strike for more money and shorter working hours.

Rifenbary and Mr. Snyder, who will vary the program with vocal duets and trios. If time permits, Mr. Snyder will also give a brief historical sketch on "Music in Mayflower Days." Musical prizes will be awarded all those pupils who have been successful in keeping up with regular lessons from September last to this June, inclusive. STATION BANDIT TO BE SENTENCED

Frank Costello, the seventeen year old desperado from New York city who pleaded guilty on Saturday to an indictment found by the grand jury charging him with holding up and attempting to rob Station Agent Abner Freer of Marlborough, will be sentenced on Wednesday by Judge Hasbrouck. The crime to which Costello pleaded guilty was a singularly bold and daring one and was committed on Sunday, April 19, of this year. Costello did not attempt his hold up of Mr. Freer until after the last train of the night passed Marlborough, when he entered the station and pulled a gun on Mr. Freer and then ordered him to open the money drawer which was an old fashioned affair, opening with a spring which rings a bell. The drawer was slightly out of order when Freer, at the point of the desperado's pistol, pulled it open, and Costello reached over and in pulling it further open it fell to the floor and a quantity of change was spilled on the floor. Costello had already stuffed the bills in his pockets but not wanting to lose the change that had dropped on the floor he stooped down to pick it up still keeping Mr. Freer covered with his gun. In reaching for a coin that had rolled under the counter Costello swerved his arm slightly and Mr. Freer seized his chance picked up the ticket stamper and brought it down on Costello's head. In the melee that followed Costello managed to fire twice but neither bullet did any damage, flying wild. While the struggle was under way Freer heard the screech of a locomotive whistle and recalled that a freight train was nearly due and he managed to pull the signal switch which caused the engineer to stop the train and the trainmen running in the station soon aided Freer in overpowering Costello, who was locked up and upon being arraigned later was held to await the action of the grand jury.

FEINBERG TRIAL NOW IN PROGRESS

The trial of Abram Feinberg, who was indicted on a charge of keeping a disorderly house at New Paltz by the grand jury last May, was taken up this morning in county court and continued this afternoon. The case gives every indication of being one of the most hotly contested legal battles that has taken place in some time. Feinberg is defended by a brilliant array of legal talent, his attorneys being Augustus H. Van Buren with Rose & Brooks of counsel. District Attorney Cunningham with Assistant District Attorney Traver is prosecuting Feinberg. The spiky features of the case attracted a large number of spectators to the court room and every seat was occupied when the trial started. A large number of young girls from 17 to 18 years of age are mixed up in the case, and it is their testimony that is expected to be of the spiky variety.

The district attorney outlined in his opening speech the nature of the case and the difficulties the prosecution would encounter in proving its case as most of the witnesses were hostile to the district attorney's office and only were present to testify because they had been compelled to be present.

The morning session was taken up with the testimony of a man named Freer, Albert Fowler, Kate Rose and Hazel Wager.

Albert Fowler, 18 years old of New Paltz, was the next witness called. Fowler testified to going to the hotel where he met Harry Feinberg, the defendant's son, who was tending bar and that he met Hazel Wager and Mabel Van Leuven. When asked what transpired he refused to answer on the grounds that it would incriminate him. Fowler acknowledged that when the case was first noted for trial shortly after the indictment had been found he had slipped away and gone to Poughkeepsie where he had remained until he had heard that the case had been put over the term.

Freer testified that Feinberg had threatened to have him arrested if he gave any testimony that was damaging to him.

From the questions put to both Freer and Fowler by the defendant's attorneys on cross examination to the effect that Feinberg was not in the hotel nights it would seem to indicate that there was some probability of trying to establish an alibi in that Feinberg was not aware of what was going on at the hotel.

Kate Rose, a slim young girl who was sixteen years of age at the time the indictment was found against Feinberg, testified to events at the hotel. She was not questioned by the defendant's attorneys.

Hazel Wager, who was about 18 years of age at the time of occurrence, refuted damaging testimony that she had given before the grand jury and said that it was not true.

A few of the young girls who are mentioned some of whom were present in the court room were Mabel Van Leuven, Angeline Keyser, Ruth Wager, Hazel Wager, May Shelley, Hattie Miller, Mattie Van Demark and Kate Rose.

A BEER TALK

GOOD BEER has great nutritive and tonic properties. At mealtimes it is now being largely consumed. These important facts have caused scientific and medical authorities to classify it as a food.

We believe that the same care and thoroughness exercised in the production of Beer should be followed in its sale as well. In Germany the brewing industry amounts to almost a national institution. The government encourages it. The people depend upon it. The result is that Germany, in common with all Beer and light wine drinking nations is free from drunkenness. The evils sometimes associated with Beer drinking do not come from the Beer itself, but occur only through over-indulgence or when Beer is sold amid improper environments. There is no harm in drinking

MR. HOOK AT MOMBACCUS.

Great Interest Taken in the Ulster County Farm Bureau.

On Sunday evening, June 6, a Farm Bureau meeting was held at the church of Mombaccus under the auspices of the Farmers' Club of that locality. About 70 people, made up of farmers, their wives and children, were present. Supervisor D. E. Schoonmaker, who is also the advisory councilman of the Farm Bureau for Rochester township, was also present and assisted the manager in his work. W. H. Hook, manager of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, was introduced by W. D. Dupuy, the president of the local Farmers' Club. Mr. Hook addressed the people on the organization, purpose and benefits of the Farm Bureau. The audience were very attentive and appreciative of the remarks. After Mr. Hook finished he called upon several of the men present to express their opinion in regard to the Farm Bureau. All spoke favorably of the organization. Membership cards were passed around, seven became members at that time and others stated that they would join later on.

It seemed that a very favorable start had been made in regard to a Farm Bureau Club in the vicinity of Mombaccus and Pataunkunk. The way had been paved by the work of their local Farmers' Club which had been in operation for some three or four years. It is hoped that other communities will take the forward step and follow the example of the people of Pataunkunk and Mombaccus in taking hold of the Farm Bureau work.

Ice cream, cake and coffee were served at the regular prices to those who desired.

THE EDDY IS A REAL REFRIGERATOR WITH SLATE-STONE SHELVES

Not an imitation. Not an experiment. Not a hollow sham. Not made for a parlor ornament. Not made to suit somebody's fad or fancy. Not made with open joints filled with cement to absorb grease and odors, and make your refrigerator a germ breeder.

But, made for what a real refrigerator is intended for, that is to keep food pure and sweet with the least amount of ice consumption for pure, clean, and healthy food. The inside lining is air-tight; nothing can penetrate back of it to breed disease and germs.

A BEER TALK

GOOD BEER has great nutritive and tonic properties. At mealtimes it is now being largely consumed. These important facts have caused scientific and medical authorities to classify it as a food.

We believe that the same care and thoroughness exercised in the production of Beer should be followed in its sale as well. In Germany the brewing industry amounts to almost a national institution. The government encourages it. The people depend upon it. The result is that Germany, in common with all Beer and light wine drinking nations is free from drunkenness. The evils sometimes associated with Beer drinking do not come from the Beer itself, but occur only through over-indulgence or when Beer is sold amid improper environments. There is no harm in drinking

MR. HOOK AT MOMBACCUS.

Great Interest Taken in the Ulster County Farm Bureau.

On Sunday evening, June 6, a Farm meeting was held at the church of Mombaccus under the auspices of the Farmers' Club of that locality. About 70 people, made up of farmers, their wives and children, were present. Supervisor D. E. Schoonmaker, who is also the advisory councilman of the Farm Bureau for Rochester township, was also present and assisted the manager in his work. W. H. Hook, manager of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, was introduced by W. D. Depuy, the president of the local Farmers' Club. Mr. Hook addressed the people on the organization, purpose and benefits of the Farm Bureau. The audience were very attentive and appreciative of the remarks. After Mr. Hook finished he called upon several of the men present to express their opinion in regard to the Farm Bureau. All spoke favorably of the organization. Membership cards were passed around, seven became members at that time and others stated that they would join later on.

It seemed that a very favorable start had been made in regard to a Farm Bureau Club in the vicinity of Mombaccus and Pataukunk. The way had been paved by the work of their local Farmers' Club which had been in operation for some three or four years. It is hoped that other communities will take the forward step and follow the example of the people of Pataukunk and Mombaccus in taking hold of the Farm Bureau work.

Ice cream, cake and coffee were served at the regular prices to those who desired.

TUBERCULOSIS COMMITTEE MEETS

Review of the Year's Work Given in Reports of Officers and the Visiting Nurse—Plans For the Future.

The Ulster county committee on the prevention of tuberculosis held its annual meeting at the city hall last evening and in addition to the election of officers thoroughly discussed the tuberculosis situation in the city and county and took up the consideration of enlarging the facilities at the present hospital.

As the president, the Hon. J. M. Fowler, was unable to be present at the opening of the meeting, Sam Bernstein, vice president, presided until the arrival of Mr. Fowler.

Following the reading of the minutes of the last meeting as read by the secretary, Dr. Mary Gage-Day, and their approval, Dr. Day gave her annual report as follows:

Since the last annual meeting there have been but two meetings of the executive council. At the first such, held on September 12, 1913, the question of the advisability of sending a visiting nurse throughout the county to see if there were patients sick with tuberculosis in their homes, or if all county patients were brought to the hospital, was brought up. After a full discussion it was unanimously decided that such a survey would be of value and the secretary was authorized to secure a nurse for one month.

Mr. Neilbach of the State Charities Aid Association came to town on the 13th of September and inspected the hospital grounds. He approved the new record blanks also the plan of having the nurse visit the county districts. Miss Mabel Thompson was secured and she began her work October first. I have asked her to report this work in full to you, so I will say that in working less than a month in the county she discovered 44 patients sick with tuberculosis and in some of these cases the patients were not receiving proper care and were spreading infection all around, showing conclusively that much as we have tried to spread knowledge of this disease, there is still much ignorance concerning it.

Our efforts must not be relaxed. It was also decided at the meeting in September, that this committee should act as agent for the sale of Christmas Seals, the secretary acting as chairman and Mrs. Reed being responsible for the county districts.

January 8, 1914, a meeting of the council was held to make final accounting of the seal sale, which resulted in $625 net proceeds.

The question of incorporating the committee was brought up and fully discussed and the following resolution was offered by Mr. Hume, seconded by Mr. Hoehn, and unanimously passed: "Resolved that the president and secretary be authorized to take necessary legal steps to have the local committee incorporated."

Some very interesting entertainments have been held at the hospital through the efforts of Mr. Bernstein and the kindness of Mr. Warner, manager of the Bijou theatre. Mrs. Reed took charge of the Christmas tree and entertainment and succeeded in making the patients forget sickness for one evening. The monthly gifts have been numerous and suitable. The patients have a very great appreciation of all these expressions of the good-will and sympathy so generously given them by the people of this community.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) MARY GAGE-DAY, Secretary.

The report was adopted and was followed by the annual report of the treasurer, Cornelius Hume. It was:

June 18, 1913—
Balance on hand $1,792.32
Total receipts from dues, donations and seal sale 2,526.02
Disbursements 283.23
Balance on hand, June 8, 1914 $2,248.79

The vouchers for the charges, together with receipted bills accompanied the report. The report was received and ordered filed and the chair appointed David Burgevin and Sam Bernstein an auditing committee to audit the accounts.

W. F. Hoehn, chairman of the publicity committee, reported the committee's great indebtedness to the press of the city for the publicity so generously given all matters relative to the tuberculosis prevention movement.

Dr. O'Meara, chairman of the committee on hospital and camp, reported in brief as follows: Our hospital facilities are below what they should be. It is understood that there are some 600 cases of tuberculosis in our county, yet at present we have accommodations for but 25 patients. In England and other countries of Continental Europe it has been found that the control of the disease can only be brought about through the isolation of cases. No other measure is so effective. To bring about this isolation, the education of patients and their families, in fact the entire community, is necessary. But in order to keep up with such education and its results, larger and better facilities for the care of patients are needed. Dr. O'Meara advocated the continued service of a county nurse, who through educational means should bring the patients to the hospital. This report was followed by a considerable discussion of the further preventive measures of stringent fumigation of houses where deaths from tuberculosis had occurred.

Miss Thompson next gave a very interesting account of her work in visiting tuberculosis patients throughout the county last fall. She visited 41 towns and villages, having the use of Dr. Gate's auto for two days, thus being able to reach places too remote from the railroad to be readily reached in any other way. In each place she tried to see the ministers, the doctors and the supervisor. She found that the ministers were almost as well informed as the doctors and in many instances the people sufficiently educated to give good home care. Villages all along the Ontario and Western Railroad were visited and instruction in home care given at the same that patients were urged to go to the hospital. Some patients who would have been glad to go to the hospital were not able to do so, their cases being too advanced. It was the opinion of all the physicians in the country towns and villages where summer boarders are to be found that something drastic should be done to prevent the large numbers of tuberculosis patients from the poorer districts of New York coming into our county and through their ignorance and carelessness spreading the disease, as unquestionably they have and still do in large measure. Miss Thompson had secured the address of a number of cheap boarding houses in the county where such patients would be likely to go, and literature telling of the danger of such boarders had been sent to the proprietors.

This interesting and enlightening report brought forth still more discussion of ways and means, and the accommodations at the hospital were inquired into. It was learned from Superintendent Dr. A. C. Gates that the hospital and camp would now accommodate 25 patients and that at present there are 20 patients there. There is no likelihood that there will be even the five vacancies long. This brought up the consideration of the enlarging of the hospital. Superintendent Gates stated that it would be utterly futile to enlarge the patient capacity of the hospital unless the dining room and kitchen facilities were enlarged as already those accommodations are crowded and the nurses and cook and orderly now work at a disadvantage in the preparation and serving of the food. Dr. Gates presented a very clever drawing showing how a possible enlargement of both dining-room and kitchen might be effected that would be of value for a considerable future period. After considerable discussion it was unanimously voted to leave the matter of the enlarging of the hospital as talked of to the president, Mr. Fowler and the superintendent, Dr. Gates, with power.

The desirability of purchasing additional and adjacent land came up also and it was voted that this matter be left in the hands of the executive council.

The president reported that while the matter of the incorporation of the committee was an elaborate and lengthy procedure, progress could be reported and stated that the return of the incorporation papers might be expected in the not distant future.

The old officers were unanimously re-elected as follows: President, the Hon. Joseph M. Fowler; vice-presidents, Rev. John J. Hickey, Sam Bernstein, Mrs. Clara N. Reed, Rev. John H. Briody, Rev. Charles G. Ellis; Secretary, Dr. Mary Gage-Day; treasurer, Cornelius Hume. Following the election of officers dues were received, and the secretary would request that all members of the Ulster county committee on the prevention of tuberculosis send their annual dues of $1 to her at their earliest convenience. The meeting then adjourned.

ROSY AND PLUMP.

Good Health From Right Food.

"It's not a new food to me," remarked a Va. man, in speaking of Grape-Nuts.

"About twelve months ago my wife was in very bad health, could not keep anything on her stomach. The Doctor recommended milk, half water, but it was not sufficiently nourishing.

"A friend of mine told me one day to try Grape-Nuts and cream. The result was really marvelous. My wife soon regained her usual strength and today is as rosy and plump as when a girl of sixteen.

"These are plain facts and nothing I could say in praise of Grape-Nuts would exaggerate in the least the value of this great food."

TUBERCULOSIS COMMITTEE MEETS

Review of the Year's Work Given in Reports of Officers and the Visiting Nurse—Plans For the Future.

The Ulster county committee on the prevention of tuberculosis held its annual meeting at the city hall last evening and in addition to the election of officers thoroughly discussed the tuberculosis situation in the city and county and took up the consideration of enlarging the facilities at the present hospital.

As the president, the Hon. J. M. Fowler, was unable to be present at the opening of the meeting, Sam Bernstein, vice president, presided until the arrival of Mr. Fowler.

Following the reading of the minutes of the last meeting as read by the secretary, Dr. Mary Gage-Day, and their approval, Dr. Day gave her annual report as follows:

Since the last annual meeting there have been but two meetings of the executive council. At the first such, held on September 12, 1913, the question of the advisability of sending a visiting nurse throughout the county to see if there were patients sick with tuberculosis in their homes, or if all county patients were brought to the hospital, was brought up. After a full discussion it was unanimously decided that such a survey would be of value and the secretary was authorized to secure a nurse for one month.

Mr. Neillbach of the State Charities Aid Association came to town on the 13th of September and inspected the hospital grounds. He approved the new record blanks also the plan of having the nurse visit the county districts. Miss Mabel Thompson was secured and she began her work October first. I have asked her to report this work in full to you, so I will say that in working less than a month in the county she discovered 44 patients sick with tuberculosis and in some of these cases the patients were not receiving proper care and were spitting and spreading infection all around, showing conclusively that much as we have tried to spread knowledge of this disease, there is still much ignorance concerning it. Our efforts must not be relaxed. It was also decided at the meeting in September, that this committee should act as agent for the sale of Christmas Seals, the secretary acting as chairman and Mrs. Reed being responsible for the county districts.

January 8, 1914, a meeting of the council was held to make final accounting of the seal sale, which resulted in $625 net proceeds.

The question of incorporating the committee was brought up and fully discussed and the following resolution was offered by Mr. Hume, seconded by Mr. Hoehn, and unanimously passed: "Resolved that the president and secretary be authorized to take necessary legal steps to have the local committee incorporated."

Some very interesting entertainments have been held at the hospital through the efforts of Mr. Bernstein and the kindness of Mr. Warner, manager of the Bijou theatre. Mrs. Reed took charge of the Christmas tree and entertainment and succeeded in making the patients forget sickness for one evening. The monthly gifts have been numerous and suitable. The patients have a very great appreciation of all these expressions of the good-will and sympathy so generously given them by the people of this community. Respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted and was followed by the annual report of the treasurer, Cornelius Hume. It was:

June 18, 1913—
Balance on hand $1,792.32
Total receipts from dues, donations and seal sale 2,526.02
Disbursements 283.23
Balance on hand, June 8, 1914 $2,248.79

The vouchers for the charges, together with receipted bills accompanied the report. The report was received and ordered filed and the chair appointed David Burgevin and Sam Bernstein an auditing committee to audit the accounts.

W. F. Hoehn, chairman of the publicity committee, reported the committee's great indebtedness to the press of the city for the publicity so generously given all matters relative to the tuberculosis prevention movement.

Dr. O'Meara, chairman of the committee on hospital and camp, reported in brief as follows: Our hospital facilities are below what they should be. It is understood that there are some 600 cases of tuberculosis in our county, yet at present we have accommodations for but 25 patients. In England and other countries of Continental Europe it has been found that the control of the disease can only be brought about through the isolation of cases. No other measure is so effective. To bring about this isolation, the education of patients and their families, in fact the entire community, is necessary. But in order to keep up with such education and its results, larger and better facilities for the care of patients are needed. Dr. O'Meara advocated the continued service of a county nurse, who through educational means should bring the patients to the hospital. This report was followed by a considerable discussion of the further preventive measures of stringent fumigation of houses where deaths from tuberculosis had occurred.

Miss Thompson next gave a very interesting account of her work in visiting tuberculosis patients throughout the county last fall. She visited 41 towns and villages, having the use of Dr. Gate's auto for two days, thus being able to reach places too remote from the railroad to be readily reached in any other way. In each place she tried to see the ministers, the doctors and the supervisor. She found that the ministers were almost as well informed as the doctors and in many instances the people sufficiently educated to give good home care. Villages all along the Ontario and Western Railroad were visited and instruction in home care given at the same that patients were urged to go to the hospital. Some patients who would have been glad to go to the hospital were not able to do so, their cases being too advanced. It was the opinion of all the physicians in the county towns and villages where summer boarders are to be found that something drastic should be done to prevent the large numbers of tuberculosis patients from the poorer districts of New York coming into our county and through their ignorance and carelessness spreading the disease, as unquestionably they have and still do in large measure. Miss Thompson had secured the address of a number of cheap boarding houses in the county where such patients would be likely to go, and literature telling of the danger of such boarders had been sent to the proprietors.

This interesting and enlightening report brought forth still more discussion of ways and means, and the accommodations at the hospital were inquired into. It was learned from Superintendent Dr. A. C. Gates that the hospital and camp would now accommodate 25 patients and that at present there are 20 patients there. There is no likelihood that there will be even the five vacancies long. This brought up the consideration of the enlarging of the hospital. Superintendent Gates stated that it would be utterly futile to enlarge the patient capacity of the hospital unless the dining room and kitchen facilities were enlarged as already those accommodations are crowded and the nurses and cook and orderly now work at a disadvantage in the preparation and serving of the food. Dr. Gates presented a very clever drawing showing how a possible enlargement of both dining-room and kitchen might be effected that would be of value for a considerable future period. After considerable discussion it was unanimously voted to leave the matter of the enlarging of the hospital as talked of to the president, Mr. Fowler and the superintendent, Dr. Gates, with power.

The desirability of purchasing additional and adjacent land came up also and it was voted that this matter be left in the hands of the executive council.

The president reported that while the matter of the incorporation of the committee was an elaborate and lengthy procedure, progress could be reported and stated that the return of the incorporation papers might be expected in the not distant future.

The old officers were unanimously re-elected as follows: President, the Hon. Joseph M. Fowler; vice-presidents, Rev. John J. Hickey, Sam Bernstein, Mrs. Clara N. Reed, Rev. John H. Briody, Rev. Charles G. Ellis; Secretary, Dr. Mary Gage-Day; treasurer, Cornelius Hume. Following the election of officers dues were received, and the secretary would request that all members of the Ulster county committee on the prevention of tuberculosis, send their annual dues of $1 to her at their earliest convenience. The meeting then adjourned.

ROSY AND PLUMP.

Good Health From Right Food.

"It's not a new food to me," remarked a Va. man, in speaking of Grape-Nuts.

"About twelve months ago my wife was in very bad health, could not keep anything on her stomach. The Doctor recommended milk, half water, but it was not sufficiently nourishing. A friend of mine told me one day to try Grape-Nuts and cream. The result was really marvelous. My wife soon regained her usual strength and today is as rosy and plump as when a girl of sixteen."

"These are plain facts and nothing I could say in praise of Grape-Nuts would exaggerate in the least the value of this great food."

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 9, 1914

There is considerable rejoicing in railroad circles over the decision of the Supreme Court which places control exclusively in the hands of the Federal Government whenever there are conflicts between Federal and State regulations. Those of us whose railroad experience has been limited to riding as passengers are able to comprehend but partly the expense and trouble which has resulted in the past from these conflicts of authority. No man can serve two masters, and it is worse yet when there happen to be a dozen masters. Railroad men have the sympathy of automobilists, who are willing to submit to State regulation, but who object to being held up by town constables all along the way.

The agitation in favor of a longer school year is being renewed in New York city. Superintendent Maxwell has for years favored cutting down the summer vacation to one month, and other educators favor the abolition of vacations altogether. This issue is bound to arise in our own city before long. Since the law requires children to attend school between certain ages, thus preventing them from securing jobs the pay for which would ease the family burdens, it should also enable them to make the most of this time. One month's vacation in a year is enough for any person of any age, and children need it less than adults. The work of teachers, it is true, is exhausting and nerve-wrecking, but they have two days of rest each week, instead of the one most of us are glad to get, and that even matters up.

According to official reports just made, it appears that during the last twelve months no less than 18,000,000 Bibles and parts of Bibles have been distributed throughout the world, most of them being paid for by the persons who received them. The book has been printed in not less than 600 languages. Singularly enough, this great number of languages reaches only about 70 per cent of the population of the globe, so that three out of ten persons are still unable to read or hear the gospel. If this rate of progress is not quickened it will require eight or nine hundred years more to completely fulfill the words of Jesus Christ that the gospel must be published among all nations. In fact, it is clear from the thirteenth chapter of St. Mark that the Day of Judgment cannot come until this task is completed.

Huerta is not the only fellow who has trouble in getting recognized. It is interesting to read that Colonel Roosevelt was on the same train in Spain with King Alfonso and dined at the same time in the same car, but was not recognized by his Majesty, although they had previously met at King Edward's funeral. It appears that there was some rule of etiquette in the way, and that there was no real ill feeling, such as exists between our President and the Mexican Dictator. It is truly an awful thing not to be recognized. Who has not suffered from the resulting sensation as of one who has no business on earth? The "cut direct" is chiefly employed by ladies, who by staring straight ahead and elevating their noses are able practically to annihilate those who have offended them, but the device is far from being unknown among effeminate men. In such cases it is a laughable spectacle, at least to disinterested persons, but when statesmen refuse recognition it is calculated to excite feelings of shame. Strong men recognize whatever exists and fight the issue out.

Conan Doyle's prophecy that the British suffragists would become victims of mob violence is already in process of fulfillment. During the last two days they have been pelted with various kinds of missiles and have narrowly escaped much worse treatment. Moreover, public opinion, as indicated by interviews with prominent persons in the London Standard, is now strongly in favor of letting the hunger strikers starve themselves to death if they want to. The worst feature of the whole suffrage movement is that it hardens the hearts of men and makes them forget the tenderness for women which they naturally feel. This change of sentiment shows itself first among the ignorant classes which usually constitute mobs, and it can never drive men of the higher classes to brutality, although it is bound to dull somewhat the fine edge of their courtesy. It is time for men and women who wish to preserve the beautiful old-time relations between the sexes to do all in their power to check the dangerous movement backed by manish women and womanish men.

HER LESSON.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

She was a young woman accustomed to no small amount of luxury and ease, and she had half promised her hand in marriage to a man who had little enough of worldly goods, and whose business future was still problematical. Her faith ran high, and she felt that, if need be, much might be sacrificed to the one great dream; but before the last binding words were spoken she called upon a friend who some years before had married a man of modest income.

The friend, half suspecting the doubts and hopes and guessing that the success of her own venture might prove the one needful thing to decide her, marshaled her through the little cottage, from cellar to attic, pointing out on the way all the small economies and makeshifts adopted to make their income effective.

At last they reached the tiny, vine-covered porch, cool, delightfully attractive and looking out upon a dear little garden stretch, where roses, sweet peas and a riot of other posies vied with one another in sending forth their beauty and fragrance.

The guest, letting her eyes sweep over the outside reach and her mind go back to the rooms, beautiful in their well planned simplicity, unconsciously voiced the trend of her thoughts. But that was all very lovely, she said, and she would be delighted to make her home in a little bower like that.

The friend, interested as she was to speed along the dream, nevertheless counted it a duty to open the questioning eyes to the important truth that the beauty, the comfort, the perfection of that little cottage had not come upon a wish. And so she replied: Yes, it was pretty, but she must not think it looked that way when it fell into their hands. At the start, it was bare, unattractive, cheap-looking, with not a thing to redeem it from pure ugliness. And as to the garden—but there wasn't a garden, not a vine, not even a spear of grass to be seen. They could not afford the luxury of a landscape gardener to transform the bare ground into a sweet little bower. And so—why, she had spent hours and hours and days as well, in her drab old garden dress, planting and to breed disease and germs, digging and working away, against the time, later on, when she might roam around in a trim white gown, plucking the roses like an exquisite lady of leisure. But let her remember that the garden hadn't "just grown." Nor the rooms. And let her bear in mind that the infinite hand of care and work stood back of those pretty rooms, for if she would look a bit carefully she would observe that it was not money-expenditure written there.

Then she smiled rather whimsically as she briefly narrated how some of the beauty had grown.

And did her words thrown in the scales have any weight—who knows?

But one thing is certain; no, two things. Given a drab little cottage at the start and no little garden at all, given a very small income, and no patience, no willingness to work, no real depth and steadiness to the love—the decision better turn against the marriage. Because dreams that change when the harder realities begin and dreams that will not stand the test of work to make them come true might far better be "nipped in the bud." And also, because a drab little cottage soon grows all the drabber unless it is illumined by work; and the little economies, the makeshifts and all become nothing but dull and sordid and very disheartening unless there's a mutual tie to push them along and make them seem easier.

And another thing is certain. When the drab little, ugly little cottage really grows into a sweet little hand-made home, it is infinitely dearer than the most pretentious of them all that costs a small fortune, but betrays not a personal touch, nor a period of waiting and wishing and working.

It is no art at all—at least, not much—to take a great, bulging pocketbook, with an unfailing treasury back of it, and, with the aid of artists and specialists of one sort and another, make a beautiful house more beautiful still. But it is a real art and an evidence of a royally fine makeup, to take a flat little pocketbook which has pretty nearly emptied its contents upon the greedy counters of tradesmen, grocer, butcher and all, and still achieve the triumph of a home that fairly sings of its beauty. It means plenty of work, of thought and of care; but in the end the lavish expenditure of labor betrays the hand and the art of a master, no less than had the perfection been worked out upon beautiful canvases.

It is an art not sung very much, but as for me, there's wholesome admiration of the men and women in the world who glorify their work, wherever it may be. If it begins with a commonplace cottage and ends in a sweet little home, the world may know it was fitness that brought it about. And if it begins with a marriage that involves many sacrifices, many hardships and patient economies, and if happiness reigns over all to the end, the world likewise may read the same lesson of fitness. And it may read it wherever folk are seen making the best and most of small opportunities, small incomes and tasks that are hard.

Observers note the results and they say, like the young woman of the beautiful cottage—very lovely and much to be desired. But are they willing to follow every hard little step, ready to don their old garden clothes that the roses may be gathered by and by?

A Musical Truism.

Walter Damrosch recounted to an orchestra leader the theme of a new opera that he thought of writing.

"Such an opera would be beautiful," said the orchestra leader, "but I'm afraid it wouldn't go in New York."

"Why not?" the composer demanded. "Because with that plot your first and last acts would not contain your finest music. Well, you know the New Yorker never sees the first act of an opera, because he arrives too late. Neither does he see the last act, because he has to hurry home to sleep."—New York Telegraph.

The Twentieth Century Way.

Miss Varney was trying to illustrate to her youthful Sunday school class the lesson, "Return good for evil." To make it practical she said:

"Now, suppose, children, one of your schoolmates should strike you, and the next day you should bring him an apple, that would be one way of returning good for evil."

A little girl, sitting in one of the front seats, raised her hand. "Well, Elizabeth," said the teacher, "what is it?"

"Then," said Elizabeth firmly, "he would strike you again to get another apple."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Taking No Chances.

A gang of laborers was employed digging a mysterious ditch across the street. It was a sewer or a place to put a gas pipe or something. One man in particular was working as if he were a chorus man in a play, just going through the motions and pretending to dig a ditch. "The foreman came along and spoke to him. 'Don't be afraid,' he said, with rich sarcasm. 'Lean on th' shovel now an' thin. If it breaks I'll pay for it!'"—Argonaut.

Advice Givers.

The late General Louis Wagner, apropos of advice givers, used to tell a George Washington story.

"The man who urges you to abandon smoking"—so he would begin—"the man who urges you to shave yourself and then drop 15 cents in a box, the man who urges you to save the money you used to give in tips—this man is never, as a rule, a very shining success himself."

"One of these men, a high school instructor, said, angrily, to a pupil: 'You ought to be ashamed of yourself! Smoking a pipe! Why, when George Washington was your age he was a smoker!'"

"Yes," said the youth, "and when he was your age, sir, he was president of the United States."—New York World.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, June 9.—Trinity Sunday was celebrated with unusual pomp in the Church of the Presentation. On this day nineteen children approached the altar to receive their God for the first time in holy communion. At 7:30 a. m. the first communicants preceded by the cross-bearer and two acolytes, marched in procession from the rectory. As they entered the church these privileged little ones intoned a communion hymn which was composed especially for the occasion by Miss Anna Tucker. Holy mass followed, the choir acquitting themselves with credit. In his sermon Father Gearin drew a comparison between the miraculous bread served by the Saviour to the thousands in the desert, and the living bread, the flesh and blood of Christ wherewith our souls are now fed. Special services were held in the evening. Father Gearin reminded the children that before they were baptized, certain promises were made by their God parents in their name. The first communicants then arose and renewed these sacred promises. Benediction of the most blessed sacrament was next imparted and immediately afterwards the children were enrolled in the scapulars and received a beautiful certificate of first holy communion. The ceremonies both in the morning and in the evening were most impressive and their memory will doubtless be long cherished by all who participated. The following are the names of the communicants: Girls: Esther Flynn, Maria Santa Gallina, Anna Gulsano, Mary Hildred Kelly, Kathryn Schiek, Rosa Sorbello, Anna Trinkle, Beatrice Tucker, Loretta Tucker. Boys: Raymond Corbett, Francis Cummings, Walter C. Fallon, John Henry, Bernardino Ferrara, Richard Prendergast, Bernard Tucker, Bernard C. Tucker, Edward Trinkle and Gioranin Zola.

Wireless Weather Forecasts.

A daily weather bulletin for the Great Lakes is now being sent out from the radio station at Radio, Va., according to an agreement just arrived at between the United States weather bureau and the United States naval radio service. This bulletin is sent out in two parts. The first consists of code letters and figures describing the weather conditions actually prevailing at 8 p. m. that day at various points along the Great Lakes. The second part of the bulletin is a special forecast of the winds that will probably be encountered on the lakes. This is distributed to shipmasters on the Great Lakes by the naval radio service during the season of lake navigation, usually from about April 15 to December 10, in the same way that weather conditions for the North Atlantic ocean and the Gulf of Mexico are sent out. The latter service was begun in July of last year. It proved popular and the weather bureau was encouraged to extend the service to the Great Lakes.

Silverstein Out on Bail.

Isidore Silverstein has been allowed the freedom of the city, having given bond in the sum of $4,300 furnished by a surety company on Monday afternoon. Mr. Silverstein has been a guest at the county jail for some time past in default of paying a judgment secured against him by Miss Julia Riley, who was injured by Silverstein's automobile which ran wild on the Rosendale road about two years ago, overturning and killing his father and seriously injuring his mother, who was confined to a hospital for a long time. The machine struck Miss Riley, who was walking home at the time. If Isidore leaves the city limits the bail bond is forfeited.

Bassett Buys a Farm.

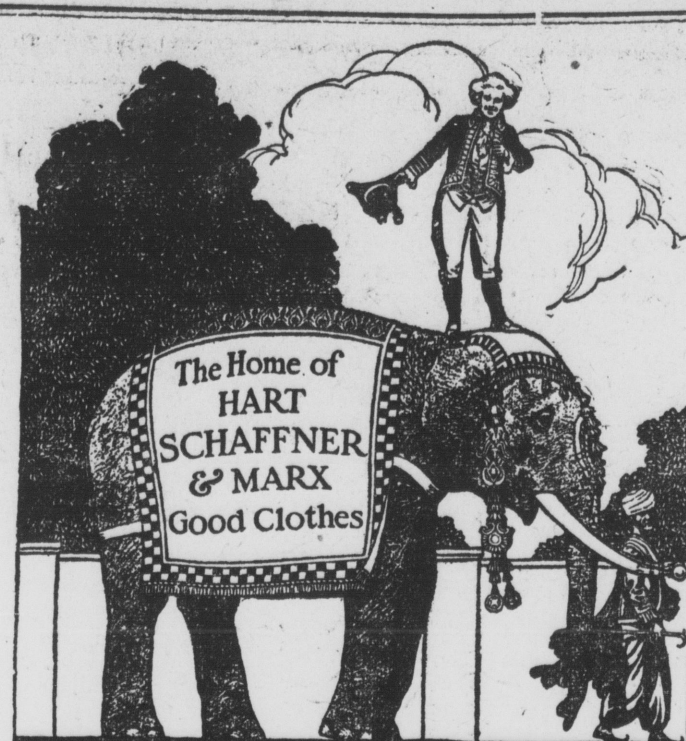

C. K. Loughran as referee sold at public auction a fourteen acre farm in the town of Esopus at the court house on Monday afternoon in a judgment of foreclosure sale in an action, entitled Grace Zieman as administrator of the estate of Sarah Ann Teasdale against Frank E. Bassett and others. The property was sold to Martin Spencer, who bid it in for Mr. Bassett, for the sum of $1,900.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 9, 1914

There is considerable rejoicing in railroad circles over the decision of the Supreme Court which places control exclusively in the hands of the Federal Government whenever there are conflicts between Federal and State regulations. Those of us whose railroad experience has been limited to riding as passengers are able to comprehend but partly the expense and trouble which has resulted in the past from these conflicts of authority. No man can serve two masters, and it is worse yet when there happen to be a dozen masters. Railroad men have the sympathy of automobilists, who are willing to submit to State regulation, but who object to being held up by town constables all along the way.

The agitation in favor of a longer school year is being renewed in New York city. Superintendent Maxwell has for years favored cutting down the summer vacation to one month, and other educators favor the abolition of vacations altogether. This issue is bound to arise in our own city before long. Since the law requires children to attend school between certain ages, thus preventing them from securing jobs the pay for which would ease the family burdens, it should also enable them to make the most of this time. One month's vacation in a year is enough for any person of any age, and children need it less than adults. The work of teachers, it is true, is exhausting and nerve-wrecking, but they have two days of rest each week, instead of the one most of us are glad to get, and that even matters up.

According to official reports just made, it appears that during the last twelve months no less than 18,000,000 Bibles and parts of Bibles have been distributed throughout the world, most of them being paid for by the persons who received them. The book has been printed in not less than 600 languages. Singularly enough, this great number of languages reaches only about 70 per cent of the population of the globe, so that three out of ten persons are still unable to read or hear the gospel. If this rate of progress is not quickened it will require eight or nine hundred years more to completely fulfill the words of Jesus Christ that the gospel must be published among all nations. In fact, it is clear from the thirteenth chapter of St. Mark that the Day of Judgment cannot come until this task is completed.

Huerta is not the only fellow who has trouble in getting recognized. It is interesting to read that Colonel Roosevelt was on the same train in Spain with King Alfonso and dined at the same time in the same car, but was not recognized by his Majesty, although they had previously met at King Edward's funeral. It appears that there was some rule of etiquette in the way, and that there was no real ill feeling, such as exists between our President and the Mexican Dictator. It is truly an awful thing not to be recognized. Who has not suffered from the resulting sensation as of one who has no business on earth? The "cut direct" is chiefly employed by ladies, who by staring straight ahead and elevating their noses are able practically to annihilate those who have offended them, but the device is far from being unknown among effeminate men. In such cases it is a laughable spectacle, at least to disinterested persons, but when statesmen refuse recognition it is calculated to excite feelings of shame. Strong men recognize whatever exists and fight the issue out.

Conan Doyle's prophecy that the British suffragists would become victims of mob violence is already in process of fulfillment. During the last two days they have been pelted with various kinds of missiles and have narrowly escaped much worse treatment. Moreover, public opinion, as indicated by interviews with prominent persons in the London Standard, is now strongly in favor of letting the hunger strikers starve themselves to death if they want to. The worst feature of the whole suffrage movement is that it hardens the hearts of men and makes them forget the tenderness for women which they naturally feel. This change of sentiment shows itself first among the ignorant classes which usually constitute mobs, and it can never drive men of the higher classes to brutality, although it is bound to dull somewhat the fine edge of their courtesy. It is time for men and women who wish to preserve the beautiful old-time relations between the sexes to do all in their power to check the dangerous movement backed by mannish women and womanish men.

HER LESSON.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

She was a young woman accustomed to no small amount of luxury and ease, and she had half promised her hand in marriage to a man who had little enough of worldly goods, and whose business future was still problematical. Her faith ran high, and she felt that, if need be, much might be sacrificed to the one great dream; but before the last binding words were spoken she called upon a friend who some years before had married a man of modest income.

The friend, half suspecting the doubts and hopes and guessing that the success of her own venture might prove the one needful thing to decide her, marshaled her through the little cottage, from cellar to attic, pointing out on the way all the small economies and makeshifts adopted to make their income effective.

At last they reached the tiny, vine-covered porch, cool, delightfully attractive and looking out upon a dear little garden stretch, where roses, sweet peas and a riot of other posies vied with one another in sending forth their beauty and fragrance.

The guest, letting her eyes sweep over the outside reach and her mind go back to the rooms, beautiful in their well planned simplicity, unconsciously voiced the trend of her thoughts. But that was all very lovely, she said, and she would be delighted to make her home in a little bower like that.

The friend, interested as she was to speed along the dream, nevertheless counted it a duty to open the questioning eyes to the important truth that the beauty, the comfort, the perfection of that little cottage had not come upon a wish. And so she replied: Yes, it was pretty, but she must not think it looked that way when it fell into their hands. At the start, it was bare, unattractive, cheap-looking, with not a thing to redeem it from pure ugliness. And as to the garden—but there wasn't a garden, not a vine, not even a spear of grass to be seen. They could not afford the luxury of a landscape gardener to transform the bare ground into a sweet little bower. And so—why, she had spent hours and hours and days as well, in her drab old garden dress, planting and working away, against the time, later on, when she might roam around in a trim white gown, plucking the roses like an exquisite lady of leisure. But let her remember that the garden hadn't "just grown." Nor the rooms. And let her bear in mind that the infinite hand of care and work stood back of those pretty rooms, for if she would look a bit carefully she would observe that it was not money—expenditure written there.

Then she smiled rather whimsically as she briefly narrated how some of the beauty had grown. And did her words thrown in the scales have any weight—who knows? But one thing is certain; no, two things.

Given a drab little cottage at the start and no little garden at all, given a very small income, and no patience, no willingness to work, no love depth and steadiness to the love—the decision better turn against the marriage. Because dreams that change when the harder realities begin and dreams that will not stand the test of work to make them come true might far better be "nipped in the bud." And also, because a drab little cottage soon grows all the drabber unless it is illumined by work; and the little economies, the makeshifts and all become nothing but dull and sordid and very disheartening unless there's a mutual tie to push them along and make them seem easier.

And another thing is certain. When the drab little, ugly little cottage really grows into a sweet little hand-made home, it is infinitely dearer than the most pretentious of them all that costs a small fortune, but betrays not a personal touch, nor a period of waiting and wishing and working.

It is no art at all—at least, not much—to take a great, bulging pocketbook, with an unfailing treasury back of it, and with the aid of artists and specialists of one sort and another, make a beautiful house more beautiful still. But it is a real art and an evidence of a royally fine makeup, to take a flat little pocketbook which has pretty nearly emptied its contents upon the greedy counters of tradesmen, grocer, butcher and all, and still achieve the triumph of a home that fairly sings of its beauty. It means plenty of work, of thought and of care; but in the end the lavish expenditure of labor betrays the hand and the art of a master, no less than had the perfection been worked out upon beautiful canvas.

It is an art not sung very much, but as for me, there's wholesome

admiration of the men and women in the world who glorify their work, wherever it may be. If it begins with a commonplace cottage and ends in a sweet little home, the world may know it was fitness that brought it about. And if it begins with a marriage that involves many sacrifices, many hardships and patient economies, and if happiness reigns over all to the end, the world likewise may read the same lesson of fitness. And it may read it wherever folk are seen making the best and most of small opportunities, small incomes and tasks that are hard.

Observers note the results and they say, like the young woman of the beautiful cottage—very lovely and much to be desired. But are they willing to follow every hard little step, ready to don their old garden clothes that the roses may be gathered by and by?

A Musical Truism.

Walter Damrosch recounted to an orchestra leader the theme of a new opera that he thought of writing.

"Such an opera would be beautiful," said the orchestra leader, "but I'm afraid it wouldn't go in New York."

"Why not?" the composed demanded.

"Because with that plot your first and last acts would not contain your finest music. Well, you know the New York never sees the first act of an opera, because he arrives too late. Neither does he see the last act, because he leaves before the curtain goes down. So unless you can put all your most effective music in your second and third acts you won't succeed in New York."—New York Telegraph.

About What They're Like.

"I fancy last night finished my reputation," said young Harold as his friend looked him up the night after the ball.

"Finished you?" asked the friend.

"Yes, my drunken condition at the ball."

"Why, not at all, man. Haven't you seen this morning's paper?"

"You're the social hero; everybody thinks you have invented a new dance."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Twentieth Century Way.

Miss Varney was trying to illustrate to her youthful Sunday school class the lesson, "Return good for evil." To make it practical she said:

"Now, suppose, children, one of your schoolmates should strike you, and the next day you should bring him an apple, that would be one way of returning good for evil."

A little girl, sitting in one of the front seats, raised her hand.

"Well, Elizabeth," said the teacher, "what is it?"

"Then," said Elizabeth firmly, "he would strike you again to get another apple."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Taking No Chances.

A gang of laborers was employed digging a mysterious ditch across the street. It was a sewer or a place to put a gas pipe or something. One man in particular was working as if he were a chorus man in a play, just going through the motions and pretending to dig a ditch. The foreman came along and spoke to him.

"Don't be afraid," he said, with rich sarcasm. "Lean on th' shovel now an' th' in. If it breaks I'll pay for it!"—Argonaut.

Advice Givers.

The late General Louis Wagner, apropos of advice givers, used to tell a George Washington story. "The man who urges you to abandon smoking"—so he would begin—"the man who urges you to shave yourself and then drop 15 cents in a box, the man who urges you to save the money you used to give in tips—this man is never, as a rule, a very shining success himself."

"One of these men, a high school instructor, said, angrily, to a pupil: 'You ought to be ashamed of yourself! Smoking a pipe! Why, when George Washington was your age he was a surveyor.'"

"Yes," said the youth, "and when he was your age, sir, he was president of the United States."—New York World.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, June 9.—Trinity Sunday was celebrated with unusual pomp in the Church of the Presentation. On this day nineteen children approached the altar to receive their God for the first time in holy communion. At 7:30 a. m. the first communicants preceded by the cross-bearer and two acolytes, marched in procession from the rectory. As they entered the church these privileged little ones intoned a communion hymn which was composed especially for the occasion by Miss Anna Tucker. Holy mass followed, the choir acquitting themselves with credit. In his sermon Father Gearin drew a comparison between the miraculous bread served by the Saviour to the thousands in the desert, and the living bread, the flesh and blood of Christ wherewith our souls are now fed. Special services were held in the evening. Father Gearin reminded the children that before they were baptized, certain promises were made by their God parents in their name. The first communicants then arose and renewed these sacred promises. Benediction of the most blessed sacrament was next imparted and immediately afterwards the children were enrolled in the scapulars and received a beautiful certificate of first holy communion. The ceremonies both in the morning and in the evening were most impressive and their memory will doubtless be long cherished by all who participated.

The following are the names of the communicants: Girls: Esther Flynn, Maria Santa Gallina, Anna Guisano, Mary Hildred Kelly, Kathryn Schick, Rosa Sorbello, Anna Trinkle, Beatrice Tucker, Loretta Tucker. Boys: Raymond Corbett, Francis Cummings, Walter C. Fallon, John Henry, Bernardino Ferrara, Richard Prendergast, Bernard Tucker, Bernard C. Tucker, Edward Trinkle and Gioranin Zola.

Wireless Weather Forecasts.

A daily weather bulletin for the Great Lakes is now being sent out from the radio station at Radio, Va., according to an agreement just arrived at between the United States weather bureau and the United States naval radio service. This bulletin is sent out in two parts. The first consists of code letters and figures describing the weather conditions actually prevailing at 8 p. m. that day at various points along the Great Lakes. The second part of the bulletin is a special forecast of the winds that will probably be encountered on the lakes. This is distributed to shipmasters on the Great Lakes by the naval radio service during the season of lake navigation, usually from about April 15 to December 10, in the same way that weather conditions for the North Atlantic ocean and the Gulf of Mexico are sent out. The latter service was begun in July of last year. It proved popular and the weather bureau was encouraged to extend the service to the Great Lakes.

GRANGERS HEAR ALL ABOUT FARM BUREAU

Practical and Lasting Nature of the Work Explained by Mr. Hook, Who Briefly Reviews the Things Already Accomplished.

The Pomona Grange of Ulster county met June 5 at Ulster Park at 11 a. m. The meeting was formally opened by the Worthy Master John E. Kraft. The morning was consumed by the installation of officers, the installing ceremony being impressively and ably performed by County Deputy I. C. Barnes of New Paltz.

A report from the Grangers from Ulster county showed that the great majority of the Granges were in a flourishing condition. It may be well for the information of some to designate our Granges of Ulster county. The Granges are located at Milton, Highland, Marlborough, Walkill, Plattkill, Stone Ridge, Wawarsing, Clintonville, Hurley, Gardiner, Ulster Park, New Paltz, and Lake Katrine. In the afternoon there was a discussion on the observance of the secret work of the order, occupying a part of the time.

In reply to questions on co-operation, Mr. Kraft gave some valuable points on this new enterprise. He spoke in part as follows:

"When the subject of co-operation is brought up I cannot help but speak up as I am so full of the subject that it fairly comes out of me. Throughout the state of New York as soon as it has become recognized that the farmers are joining together for their mutual benefit then the manufacturing and other business co-operations whose profits will be lowered by the banding together of the farmers, set the wheel in motion to discourage this co-operation among the farmers who have been supporting them for years past. These business and manufacturing co-operations which will be hurt by the organization of the farmers will have highly paid and well educated representatives to whisper words of suspicion and distrust into the ears of the farmers. These interests which profit from the farmers' labor will discourage in every possible way banding together of the farmers but our farmers must not heed them."

He cited an instance of a newly formed organization of farmers near Buffalo who were frightened in their organized effort by threats of a skilled attorney of the interests opposed to co-operation among the farmers. He also cited an instance of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange when they attempted to save $56 on the refrigeration of the railway cars. "The railroads," he said, "attempted to force the California Growers' Exchange to have their cars iced by the railway company, but the California Fruit Growers' Exchange knowing that they could save $56 on each car by iced it themselves, carried the matter to court. The Fruit Growers received a decision in the first court but the railroads carried the matter to a higher court until finally the case was appealed to the supreme court of the United States. This United States court approved of the decision of the lower court and handed down a decision to the Fruit Growers that they might ice their own cars, and the railroad would have to carry the cars. The California Fruit Growers' Exchange was not to be bulldozed by an opposing co-operation." Mr. Kraft mentioned the fact that a co-operation papers of the various cooperative societies which he had formed were held up at the secretary of state's office because of a slight trivial mistake in the wording of the papers. He suggested that the co-operation papers be sent to the department of agriculture and be approved by that body before going to the secretary of state's office.

When the literary hour was reached, C. E. Davis of Flatbush, lecturer of the Pomona Grange, introduced W. H. Hook, manager of the Ulster County Farm Bureau. After making a few suggestions for the good of the Grange Mr. Hook took up the matter of the Farm Bureau. He spoke in part as follows.

"I have been in this county since April 16, and have visited a number of different parts of the county and met a great many of the prominent people of the county. I am delighted with the conditions and the people as I find them in Ulster county and feel positive that I shall find pleasure in my work here. "So far I have made 15 addresses in the following places: Stone Ridge Grange, Clintonville Grange, Marlborough Grange, Ulster Park Grange, Hurley Grange, a second time at Marlborough, New Paltz Grange, New Paltz Dutch Arms, Pine Hill Teachers' Conference, Flatbush school, Plattkill Grange, Local Farm Bureau Woodstock, Walkill Grange, Kingston Dutch Arms, Gardiner Grange. In nearly all of these sections the subject discussed was the organization purpose and the benefits of the Farm Bureau. I think we all recognize that this work should have been taken care of before the Farm Bureau went to work in the world in the county so that he could have given his attention more to the agricultural needs. However, I have done the work willingly inasmuch as it gave me an opportunity to know the county and to know the people of the county and to be thoroughly familiar with the details of my position. It is hard to make any calculation or to put your finger on the benefits which come from explaining the subject. However, from these 15 talks we are sure of the following results:

"About 500 people now know that there is a Farm Bureau Association in Ulster county and these same 500 people have some knowledge of the organization purposes and the benefits of this association. More than this, these 500 people have an acquaintance with the manager of the Farm Bureau so that there is less hesitancy on their part to call upon him. Also, the manager of the Farm Bureau who came a stranger to Ulster county is now in touch with several hundred of the best people of the county. Another result has been the awakening of the farmers to the benefit that the Farm Bureau can be to the county. Many who before the meetings were lukewarm or even indifferent on the subject of Farm Bureaus are now alert, enthusiastic and sincere in pledging their co-operation and assistance. In many of the meetings held there has been an organized expression on the part of the body addressed that they will support and assist the Farm Bureau.

"Your Farm Bureau agent has been heartily welcomed, highly respected and royally entertained. I wish to assure you that this reception of the manager of your Farm Bureau has not been received as an expression to my personal qualifications but it has been received as an expression of the people of Ulster county to the representative to the Farm Bureau. In all of these talks I have endeavored to point out distinctly and clearly that I was not the Farm Bureau, that the Farm Bureau was a definite organization of the farmers and those interested in farming and that I was simply the hired man or the acting force of this body. I have also pointed out that the Farm Bureau is not a loose 'hit and miss' attempt to benefit the farmers but that it is definitely organized with a president, first, second and third vice-president, a secretary, treasurer and an executive committee composed of five farmers and two business men. These men direct the work of the Bureau. There is also an advisory council made up of a leading farmer from each township. These men come together and make definite recommendations as to what work shall be carried on. More than this, each advisory councilman is the leader of the local organization, represents his community at the county meetings and directs the work of the Bureau in his section."

"I have also emphasized that the Farm Bureau is not a new notion that will soon die out, it is beyond the experimental stage. Its benefits up to the present time as tried out in every section of the country, show that it is an institution worthy to continue. There are now over 200 Farm Bureaus organized in the United States and 26 out of 61 of the counties of New York state have these Bureaus. More than this, when busy men with the great many diverting duties like Judge Clearwater, Herbert Carl, Sam Bernstein, Mr. Winston, Mr. Kraft, David Burgevin, J. A. Hepworth and many others I might name, take time to interest themselves in this work and expend effort in its organization and invest from $25 to $50 for its running expenses; when, I say such cool-headed, far-seeing, capable men as these support an organization you may be sure it is not a trivial affair and must become permanent."

"But other things besides addresses have been made. A great many telephone calls have come to our office on farm problems which have been answered. Many persons have received information in reply to their written requests while other problems have been settled in personal interviews in a call at the office on the part of the farmer. Recently the manager was called to the fruit district to investigate an insect pest. I made an investigation in several sections and then proceeded to publish my findings in the papers. It was not my intention to alarm the growers into spraying so that their expenditure for the spraying might amount to more than the benefit which would be derived, but it was only my purpose to warn the growers so that they might be on the alert. Where the devastation seemed great, there the growers should resort to spraying. This insect was well discussed in the local papers recently."

In my journeys around the county I have come to learn the conditions of the county. The whole is divided roughly into three groups. There is the fruit section covering the territory in the vicinity of Marlborough, Milton, Highland, Esopus and Ulster Park; then there is the dairy section in the vicinity of Walkill, Gardiner and Plattkill. The hay farmers of Flatbush, Glasco, Saugerties. The remainder is general farming. In all these sections there is mixed in the general farmer."

The General Community Problems of the County.

"The problems which the whole locality should attack that seem to be urgent in the fruit section are these: The eradication of dangerous insect pests such as San Jose scale, tent caterpillar, apple red bug and such bacterial and physiological diseases as the fire blight of pears and the Little Peach. Also the arrangements for a cold storage station located in the fruit belt accessible to fruit growers. With the individual growers the bureau can assist with projects of planting and laying out orchards, fighting insect pests and fungus diseases. In the dairy section the general plan of action seems to be the establishments of cow testing associations, the elimination of scrub or the inferior sires of the herds, the control of tuberculosis, the building of silos. To the individual dairyman the bureau should be able to assist in securing more convenient water supplies, greater saving of manure, better sanitation, more comfortable quarters. In the general farming section, there will be problems in regard to the control of mustard or similar plants in oats and grass lands, the growing of alfalfa, where it is advisable to grow it, liming of the soils and the drainage of the land. I think I have shown you that there is a definite work ahead of us and that to accomplish results the work must be carried on in a systematic manner and must receive the support of all the members of the community if the community is to receive any benefit from the effort under the consideration."

At the present time we find some of our fruit growers suffering from the peach leaf curl and the apple red bug. It is now too late to do anything for the peach leaf curl. The manager of the Farm Bureau will make an effort for the remainder of this year and at the beginning of next year to bring to the attention of the members of the Farm Bureau the operations as they need to be performed in order to secure control, at periods of the year when the evidence of the destruction is not forcing itself upon the farmer. I shall make an effort to have oat seed treated for smut, potato seed treated for scab and other diseases, peach trees sprayed for peach leaf curl and apple trees sprayed for apple red bug, codling moth, tent caterpillar and other injurious insects at the time when the things should be done to bring about the greatest good.

Each farmer may be able to take care of his particular farm but in order to accomplish benefits for the whole community of which he is part the whole community must attack the problem. Such is the purpose of the Farm Bureau. It is an organization of farmers. The plain purposes of which are to unite all local farm interests, to develop all local agriculture, to help make farming more profitable, and country life more enjoyable. We should ever keep before us the motto: "Make Our Best Better."

After Mr. Hook finished, Mr. Barnes, one of the active members of the Farm Bureau, called attention to the fact that there was a need of more publicity in our local papers as to what the Farm Bureau was and what it was trying to do. In reply to Mr. Barnes's assertion, Mr. Hook, the chairman of the executive committee of the organization, rose to his feet and pointed out that an effort had been made and was being made to get articles in the local press of all sections of the county. He realized that all the efforts which had been made on this line had not materialized nor had all the articles prepared been printed. He hoped that now the work had fairly begun the matter of articles in the newspapers on Farm Bureau matters would receive definite attention. He emphatically declared that the farmers of Ulster county ought to be ashamed to have their business and professional men of Kingston secure and finance a proposition for the benefit of the farmers and then when the thing was launched to have the farmers hold back and refuse to make an investment of one small dollar in an organization which was entirely for the farmers' own good. He declared that every man present at the Pomona meeting should be a member, should invest a dollar in the Farm Bureau and then should see to it that he get his dollar's worth out of the bureau.

Several others spoke on the matter of the Farm Bureau and on the control of the tent caterpillar. Meeting closed about 4 o'clock.

GRANGE AWARDED SEAL SALE PRIZE

Two Month's Services of Public Health Nurse Presented to Webster Organization by State Charities Aid Association.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rochester, June 9.—Webster Grange, No. 436, near this city, by selling the largest number of Red Cross Christmas Seals in the 1913 Grange campaign, under the auspices of the State Grange and State Charities Aid Association, won the first prize. The prize, donated by the State Charities Aid Association, consists of two month's service of a public health nurse. The Webster Grange sold 8,245 seals.

W. N. Giles, secretary of the State Grange and chairman of its public health committee, assistant with George J. Nelbach, assistant secretary of the State Charities Aid Association, attended a special meeting of the Webster Grange on Saturday night and with appropriate ceremonies formally awarded the prize to the Grange.

Miss Elizabeth Hanson, the nurse who has been employed by the State Charities Aid Association for this work under the direction of the prize winning granges, has had a broad experience in public health nursing. She has been a member of the army nursing corps; head nurse of the tuberculosis department of the city hospital of Minneapolis; head of a tuberculosis ward while in the army service and has been a very successful school nurse under the board of education of Minneapolis.

Lewiston Grange in Niagara County, sold 3,425 seals, winning the other prize offered by the State Charities Aid Association. Miss Hanson will be in Webster for two months and in the early part of August will go to Lewiston.

The work will consist of visiting the sick in their homes, instructing the well members of the families in the care of the patient, assisting the school medical inspectors, investigating as to the kinds and causes of sickness, and the best means of solving the problem of home care in rural communities. In all cases, however, the nurse, as in all public health nursing, will work in co-operation with attending physicians.

The employment of such nurses by town, village and city health officers is authorized by the public health law and the public health committee of the Grange, the state department of health, and the State Charities Aid Association hopes to make the work of the prize nurse an object lesson in practical public health nursing in rural communities.

CO-OPERATION IN KANSAS

Striking Example of Low Fire and Tornado Insurance Rates and Small Expenditures.

No more striking example of successful Grange co-operation, for the financial benefit of its members, has been anywhere afforded than in the case of the Patrons of Fire and Tornado association in Kansas, whose headquarters are in the city of Olathe, and whose secretary and manager is George Black, formerly master of the Kansas State Grange.

During the 12 months that ended December 31, the company increased its risks $2,003,205, closing its year with $18,184,198 in insurance on its books, while the insurance written during the year aggregated $4,718,795, of which $3,085,125 was fire insurance and $1,628,660 was in the tornado class. The losses sustained by the company during the year were phenomenally low, considering the volume of insurance in force: On 59 tornado losses $1,289.16 insurance was paid; on 59 stock losses, $4,878.12; on 63 fire losses, $15,042.83; or a total insurance loss paid by the company, for 12 months, of only $21,005.11. Over against these losses the company collected on assessments $48,631.14; on premiums, $33,572.33; on interest, $838.37, making total receipts $82,441.84. The entire operating expenses of the year, exclusive of losses paid, were but $7,738.60, making the disbursements of the year only $28,743.71. Thus the association closed its year with $56,904.30 in its treasury, which makes 1913 the most successful financial year the association has ever known. As an example of low rate of operating expense on small percentage of losses sustained on the volume of risks carried, it doubtful if another insurance company in the country, of any nature, can duplicate the above year's work.

The success of this company is due to economy and fairly good management and there is no reason why it should not continue to succeed, if the confidence of the policy holders continues, and dissension is not injected into its ranks.

This insurance company bids fair to live as long as any other business venture. It is founded on the honor of good men who have obligated themselves in a written contract to pay each other's losses and therefore has as security the wealth of the entire membership behind each obligation that devolves on this company.

A GRANGE OFFICIAL.

The Grange in New Hampshire feels distinctly honored that one of its members has been made commissioner of agriculture of the state, a new office of great importance created as the successor of the old state board of agriculture.

To be the first commissioner, under this new order of things, has been selected Andrew L. Felker, one of the best known Grange members in the state. For nearly 20 years he has been an enthusiastic worker in the order, serving as deputy and as lecturer of the New Hampshire State Grange, and last December was elected its overseer, the position of second rank in the order. As state lecturer, Mr. Felker instituted many lives of progressive Grange work that have set the order forward by great strides in that state. Mr. Felker begins his new duties at once but will remain as overseer of the State Grange and will be a prominent factor in shaping its policies.

This is the second recent case in New England of a prominent Grange leader being put at the head of the agricultural affairs of the state, the other instance being Leonard H. Healey of Connecticut, who, while master of the Connecticut State Grange, has appointed secretary of the Connecticut State Board of Agriculture, a position which he still holds.

FORTY YEARS A PATRON.

Hon. Wilson of Peoria, Ill., master of the National Grange, has just attained the distinction of observing the fortieth anniversary of his joining the Grange, just 40 years ago. Mr. Wilson became one of the charter members of Magnolia Grange, in Peoria, Ill., and he has been continuously an active member of that Grange ever since, and his wife as well. During that time Mr. Wilson has served for 16 years as master of the Illinois State Grange, for two years as lecturer of the National Grange, and is just now entering upon his third year as master of the National Grange, a position in which he has achieved a noteworthy measure of success.

CARMAN COMPETENT TO MAKE A WILL

Surrogate Gill So Holds in Case of Kerhonkson Undertaker's Will Which Was Contested by Relatives.

Surrogate Gill, in the surrogate's court, today handed down a decision in the celebrated Nathaniel W. Carman will contest, in which he finds that Mr. Carman had testamentary capacity at the time of executing his will, and that the will should be admitted to probate.

Mr. Carman for many years was a well known undertaker and furniture dealer at Kerhonkson. The fact that one of his employees left his employ and after engaging in business for himself now heavily from his trade preyed on the old man's mind, and one day attempted to set fire to his rival's business establishment, in broad daylight. He was found to be insane and was committed to the Middletown asylum, where he died. The will was made in July, 1911, and he was committed to the asylum in the following January.

The contest has been one of the most interesting that has been conducted in the Ulster county surrogate's court in a long time, and was also one of the most hotly contested cases that has been heard there in many years. John R. DeVany appeared for the executrix named in the will, who is Mr. Carman's widow; and Cunningham & Traver represented the contestants.

The entire story of Carman's life as unfolded during the contest, and as clearly stated in Surrogate Gill's opinion forms an interesting romance which rivals the most fascinating fiction.

Surrogate Gill's Opinion.

Surrogate Gill's opinion is as follows:

Nathaniel W. Carman, late of the town of Wawarsing, Ulster county, died December 15, 1912, aged about 78 years, and left him surviving, Mary Carman, his widow, and also Charles Terwilliger, a nephew, residing at Walden, Orange county; Austin Terwilliger, a grand-nephew; Sadie Terwilliger, a grand-niece; Carrie Whelpley and Martha Marl, nieces, residing at Walker Valley, Ulster county; Alexander Terwilliger, a nephew, residing at Ellenville, Ulster county; Theodore Whelpley and George Whelpley, nephews, residing at Newark, N. J.; Julia Whelpley, grand-niece, 21 D. Whelpley, grand-nephew, residing at Oneida, N. Y.; and Orlando Carman and Frank Carman, nephews, whose places of residence are unknown.

The decedent left a paper purporting to be his last will and testament, dated July 10, 1911, naming his wife, Mary Carman, as his sole legatee, devisee and executrix, and she has offered to execute the same.

The probate is opposed by all the collateral relatives, except Orlando and Frank Carman, on all the usual grounds.

The factum of the will has been satisfactorily proved, and there is no evidence of undue influence or fraud. Upon the remaining question, which is that of testamentary capacity, the testimony is voluminous.

The well established rule of law, as to what constitutes testamentary capacity, is stated in Delafeld v. Parish, 25 N. Y. 9, as follows: "We have held that it is essential that the testator has sufficient capacity to comprehend perfectly the condition of his property, his relations to the persons who were, or should, or might have been the objects of his bounty, and the scope and bearing of the provisions of his will. He must, in the language of the cases, have sufficient active memory to collect in his mind, without prompting, the particulars or elements of the business to be transacted, and to hold them in his mind a sufficient length of time to perceive at least their obvious relation to each other, and to be able to form some rational judgment in relation to them."

This rule has been universally followed and is restated in Horn v. Pullman, 72 N. Y. 269, as follows: "There is no presumption against a will because made by a man of advanced age, nor incapacity be inferred from an enfeebled condition of mind or body. Such a rule would be dangerous in the extreme, and the law wisely sustains testamentary dispositions made by persons of impaired mental and bodily powers, provided the will is the free act of the testator, and he has sufficient intelligence to comprehend the condition of his property, and the scope, meaning and effect of the provisions of the will."

The difficulty, if any, in the disposition of this class of cases arises solely in the application of this rule to the facts proved.

Testator had been for over fifty years engaged in the furniture and undertaking business at Kerhonkson, Ulster county, and had accumulated and at the time of his death left about $13,000 in personal property and about $6,000 in real property.

In his life he had opened five accounts in savings banks in his name in trust for his wife, which accounts aggregated $15,657.36 at the time of his death. The first of these was opened October 6, 1891, and the last September 8, 1906.

One, Hummiston, left the employ of the testator about February 1, 1908, and started in the furniture and undertaking business for himself at Kerhonkson, and secured a large part of the patronage formerly enjoyed by the testator.

The success of Hummiston and the corresponding loss of business on his own part, greatly worried the testator, and he attempted to set fire to Hummiston's place of business on the night of January 30, 1912. He was caught in the attempt and arrested. On the following day he was taken before the county judge, examined by two physicians, and committed to the Middletown State Homeopathic Hospital for the insane, where he remained until his death.

On the 16th day of March, 1912, an inspection de lunatico inquired was executed and he was found incompetent to manage his affairs, and on March 27, 1912, a committee of his person and estate was appointed. The inquiry finds that he "is an incompetent person with lucid intervals and is suffering from old age and senile dementia."

During the period of two years prior to November 1, 1911, testator traded away a team of horses and informed the horse dealer that they had run away and for that reason he wished to get rid of them and accepted $250 for them, while the witnesses thought they were worth $300; on several occasions he had difficulty in making correct change for his customers; he told one witness half a dozen times that a man named Brown had said "I get my living with my brains and don't have to work any more;" he endorsed a note for a party, which turned out to be worthless; he put up the cracks and saw marks in an old tool chest and had his man paint it; he brought a receipt from a telephone company to a justice of the peace and asked him to sign it; he had difficulty in preparing his ballot at the election in 1910 or 1911; a customer brought back a clock and said it would not go, and testator replied that he would fix it and after the customer got as far as the door he called him back and said "It is fixed" and handed him another clock of the same kind; he fell several times; he employed a blacksmith to put a brake on his wagon and had it changed several times; he asked twenty cents for a ten cent can of paint; he requested a blacksmith to make an iron and when the blacksmith inquired what kind, the testator replied, "You know;" several times he was seen in his shop in a drowsy attitude with his head on his hands; he did not talk much; he spoke slower; once when he did not have change he said he would make no charge on the books, because the customer asked him not to and said he would drop in and pay; he ordered a desk for a customer and did not charge him any profit on it; he had difficulty in picking out a can of paint from the shelf and was assisted to do so by the customer; he had an offer of $150 for a lot which he orally accepted and refused several times; his writing was poor; sometimes he got mixed up in his measurements; his memory was faulty at times; sometimes he was careless about the arrangement of his clothing; on two occasions he returned goods after ordering them; on one occasion he asked 40 cents for a pair of table hinges and asked the customer what he had done with his (testator's) bank book; he had a dispute with the cemetery trustees about putting vaults in his cemetery lot.

These incidents were exceptional and do not describe his general conduct, which was so ordinary as not to attract attention from those who saw him from day to day.

Testator carried on his business up to January 30, 1912, at which time he owed not more than $100. He bought and sold goods, had a well selected stock, waited on customers, made change, kept bank accounts and made checks thereon, partially looked after his household affairs and accounted of the falling light of his wife's superintended repairs to his buildings, selected accounts with his customers, sent and ordered two vaults and superintended the placing of the same in his cemetery lot. He went to the post office for his mail regularly and went to the railroad station to look after the shipping and receipts of goods by freight or express, went to the barber shop to be shaved, loaned money on bond and mortgage and looked after the details of the same in November, 1911, frequently endorsed notes, and performed many other acts and made statements in connection with his business and life characterized as rational by the lay witness for the proponent and some of the lay witnesses for the contestants.

On the morning of July 10, 1911, he said he was going to Ellenville on business, and he went unattended to the railroad depot and took the train to Ellenville, where he went to the office of H. Westlake, a well known and reputable attorney and gave directions for the preparation of his will. He told the attorney that he wanted to leave everything to his wife, and her name was Mary Carman. The attorney immediately prepared the will and told testator that he would have to have one more witness. The testator named Myron C. Wood and the attorney telephoned for him to come to the office, and upon his arrival the will was duly signed and attested with all the formalities required by law. On the same day $330 was deposited to the credit of the testator in the Home National Bank of Ellenville, which deposit was apparently made by him. On his arrival home in the evening he stated that he had made his will.

About two months previous to the execution of this will, testator had stated to Myron C. Wood that he had made a will twenty-five years prior to that time by which he had left everything to his wife. That such will had been witnessed by Philo Beers and Eldridge G. Fuller, both of whom had since died; and that it was his intention to make a new will so as to have living witnesses thereto.

He had been married to the proponent and had lived with her over fifty years and had no children. Her care and management of the household, undoubtedly, contributed in a large measure to the accumulation of the property left by testator. His confidence in her, and his solicitude for her welfare, was evidenced by the fact that he had years before made a will in her favor, and also by the fact that he had at different times opened savings bank accounts in his name in trust for her. She was old and almost blind and should have been and no doubt was the dearest person to him on earth. It seems to have been his consistent purpose for over twenty-five years to leave all his property to his wife.

None of the contestants reside at Kerhonkson, and it does not appear that he ever went to see any of them or that any of them ever called upon him, or even had any business or social relations with him. It does not appear that he ever corresponded with any of them, or that he ever heard from or knew of the existence of some of them.

Upon the facts shown I am of the opinion that testator was compe-

Fishermen's Language.

A correspondent of the English magazine, Country Life, has been studying the vocabulary of Hastings fishermen. He says: "Where there is a dead calm, with the air hot and moist, the weather is said to be 'planety.' If it is oppressively sultry with a heavy sky and oily sea it is 'swallowy,' and presages a storm, which often breaks suddenly with a roaring squall. A long loop of cloud with trailing ends is designated an 'eddenbite,' blown out streamers of white cloud are 'windogs,' large wool-pack-like clouds scurrying before a high wind are 'messengers,' small, widely scattered clouds floating in an otherwise clear sky, are 'postboys.' Occasionally, when the sun is setting, a mock sun is seen on each side of the solar disk. This phenomenon goes by the name of 'smitherdiddles' and is regarded as a sign of bad weather. A thick soaking mist, moving rapidly from the land over the sea, is called an 'egger jagger.'"

The Plain of Curragh.

The Curragh (a plain in the County Kildare, Ireland) is a stretch of open ground of about 4,800 acres and serves the twin purposes of a large military camp and a race course, and in the latter capacity it has a reputation extending as far back as the first century A. D., at which period, if records may be accepted, chariot races were a diversion which the people of the time permitted themselves. The camp only dates from the Crimean war. The plain of Curragh was often the scene of hostile engagements between early Irish kings, and it is St. Bridget who is credited with having received a grant of the district from the king of Leinster and with having turned it into a common. The young men of Kildare are often jokingly described as "the boys of the short grass" in allusion to the herbage of the district of Curragh. —Westminster Gazette.

One of the Weather Men.

Shortly after the establishment of a station in Wytheville by the weather bureau a youth named Tom erected a signal pole on his mother's coal shed. He would daily hoist flags of his own in imitation of the ones of the government. This was done so persistently that Mary, a neighbor's daughter, soon adjusted her movements for the day to Tom's flags.

On the morning for a picnic she was rejoiced at the sight of a fair weather flag flying from Tom's flagpole. Her mother, being discouraged by the number of clouds, remarked, "You cannot depend on his flag, for he may not have followed the weather man's." Mary, thinking them thoroughly reliable, said, "You can depend on them, mother, for Tom does his own guessing!" —National Monthly.

Grouchy.

"There is a movement on foot," said Mr. Snoots, "to prevent the marriage of weak-minded persons. What do you think of it?"

"I think it's rot," answered Mr. Grouch. "Why, who else ever wants to get married?" —Cleveland Leader.

An Exception.

Mudge—Here's a man figured out that if all the money in the world were divided equally each adult would get about $30. Meeg—He's wrong. My wife would get $60. —Boston Transcript.

CARMAN COMPETENT TO MAKE A WILL

Surrogate Gill So Holds in Case of Kerhonkson Undertaker's Will Which Was Contested by Relatives.

Surrogate Gill, in the surrogate's court, today handed down a decision in the celebrated Nathaniel W. Carman will contest, in which he finds that Mr. Carman had testamentary capacity at the time of executing his will, and that the will should be admitted to probate.

Mr. Carman for many years was a well known undertaker and furniture dealer at Kerhonkson. The fact that one of his employees left his employ and after engaging in business for himself now heavily from his trade preyed on the old man's mind, and one day attempted to set fire to his rival's business establishment, in broad daylight. He was found to be insane and was committed to the Middletown asylum, where he died. The will was made in July, 1911, and he was committed to the asylum in the following January.

The contest has been one of the most interesting that has been conducted in the Ulster county surrogate's court in a long time, and was also one of the most hotly contested cases that has been heard there in many years. John R. DeVany appeared for the executrix named in the will, who is Mr. Carman's widow; and Cunningham & Traver represented the contestants.

The entire story of Carman's life as unfolded during the contest and as clearly stated in Surrogate Gill's opinion forms an interesting romance which rivals the most fascinating fiction.

Surrogate Gill's Opinion.

Surrogate Gill's opinion is as follows:

Nathaniel W. Carman, late of the town of Wawarsing, Ulster county, died December 15, 1912, aged about 78 years, and left him surviving, Mary Carman, his widow; and also Charles Terwilliger, a nephew, residing at Waliden, Orange county; Austin Terwilliger, a grand-nephew; Sadie Terwilliger, a grand-niece; Carrie Whelpley and Martha Marl, nieces, residing at Walker Valley, Ulster county; Alexander Terwilliger, a nephew, residing at Ellenville, Ulster county; Theodore Whelpley and George Whelpley, nephews, residing at Newark, N. J.; Julia Whelpley, grand-niece; Eli D. Whelpley, grand-nephew, residing at Oneida, N. Y.; and Orlando Carman and Frank Carman, nephews, whose places of residence are unknown.

The decedent left a paper purporting to be his last will and testament, dated July 10, 1911, naming his wife, Mary Carman, as his sole legatee, devise and executrix, and she has offered the same for probate.

The probate is opposed by all the collateral relatives, except Orlando and Frank Carman, on all the usual grounds.

The factum of the will has been satisfactorily proved, and there is no evidence of undue influence or fraud.

Upon the remaining question, which is that of testamentary capacity, the testimony is voluminous.

The well established rule of law, as to what constitutes testamentary capacity, is stated in Delafield v. Pugh, 25 N. Y. 9, as follows: "We have held that it is essential that the testator has sufficient capacity to comprehend perfectly the condition of his property, his relations to the persons who were, or should, or might have been the objects of his bounty, and the scope and bearing of the provisions of his will. He must, in the language of the judges, have sufficient active memory to collect in his mind, without prompting, the particulars or elements of the business to be transacted, and to hold them in his mind a sufficient length of time to perceive at least their obvious relation to each other, and to be able to form some rational judgment in relation to them."

This rule has been universally followed, and is restated in Horn v. Pullman, 72 N. Y. 269, as follows: "There is no presumption against a will because made by a man of advanced age, nor incapacity be inferred from an enfeebled condition of mind or body. Such a rule would be dangerous in the extreme, and the law wisely sustains testamentary dispositions made by persons of impaired mental and bodily powers, provided the will is the free act of the testator, and he has sufficient intelligence to comprehend the condition of his property, and the scope, meaning and effect of the provisions of the will."

The difficulty, if any, in the disposition of this class of cases, arises solely in the application of this rule to the facts proved.

Testator had been for over fifty years engaged in the furniture and undertaking business at Kerhonkson, Ulster county, and had accumulated and at the time of his death left about $13,000 in personal property and about $6,000 in real property.

In his life he had opened five accounts in savings banks in his name in trust for his wife, which accounts aggregated $15,557.36 at the time of his death. The first of these was opened October 1, 1891, and the last September 8, 1906.

One, Hummiston, left the employ of the testator about February 1, 1908, and started in the furniture and undertaking business for himself at Kerhonkson, and secured a large part of the patronage formerly enjoyed by the testator.

The success of Hummiston and the corresponding loss of business on his own part, greatly worried the testator, and he attempted to set fire to Hummiston's place of business on the night of January 30, 1912. He was caught in the attempt and arrested, and on the following day he was taken before the county judge, examined by two physicians, and committed to the Middletown State Homeopathic Hospital for the insane, where he remained until his death.

On the 16th day of March, 1912, an allegation of lunatico inquired was executed and he was found incompetent to manage his affairs, and on March 27, 1912, a committee of his person and estate was appointed. The inquisition finds that he "is an incompetent person with lucid intervals and is suffering from old age and senile dementia."

During the period of two years prior to November 1, 1911, testator traded away a team of horses and informed the horse dealer that they had run away and for that reason he wished to get rid of them and accepted $250 for them, while the witness thought they were worth $300; on several occasions he had difficulty in making correct change for his customers; he told one witness half a dozen times that a man named Brown had said "I got my living with my brains and don't have to work any more;" he endorsed a note for a party, which turned out to be worthless; he putted up the cracks and saw marks in an old tool chest and had his man paint it; he brought a receipt from a telephone company to a justice of the peace and asked him to sign it; he had difficulty in preparing his ballot at the election in 1910 or 1911; a customer brought back a clock and said it would not go, and testator replied that he would fix it and after the customer got as far as the door he called him back and said "It is fixed" and handed him another clock of the same kind; he fell several times; he employed a blacksmith to put a brake on his wagon and had it changed several times; he asked twenty cents for a ten cent can of paint; he requested a blacksmith to make an iron and when the blacksmith inquired what kind, the testator replied, "You know;" several times he was seen in his shop in a drowsy attitude with his head on his hands; he did not talk much; he spoke slower; once when he did not have change he said he would make no charge on the books, because the customer asked him not to and said he would drop in and pay; he ordered a desk for a customer and did not charge him any profit on it; he had difficulty in picking out a can of paint from the shelf and was assisted to do so by the customer; he had an offer of $150 for a lot which he orally accepted and refused several times; his writing was poor; sometimes he got mixed up in his measurements; his memory was faulty at times; sometimes he was careless about the arrangement of his clothing; on two occasions he returned goods after ordering them; on one occasion he asked 40 cents for a pair of table linens and asked the customer what he had done with his (testator's) bank book; he had a dispute with the cemetery trustees about putting vaults in his cemetery lot.

Testator carried on his business up to January 30, 1912, at which time he owed more than $100. He bought and sold goods, had a well selected stock, waited on customers, made change, kept bank accounts and made checks thereon, partially looked after his household affairs, and was a well respected member of the community.

On the morning of July 10, 1911, he said he was going to Ellenville on business, and he went unattended to the railroad depot and took the train to Ellenville, where he went to the office of H. Westlake Coons, a well known and reputable attorney, and gave directions for the preparation of his will. He told the attorney that he wanted to leave everything to his wife, and her name was Mary Carman. The attorney immediately prepared the will and told testator that he would have to have one more witness. The testator named Myron C. Wood and the attorney telephoned for him to come to the office, and upon his arrival the will was duly signed and attested with all the formalities required by law. On the same day $330 was deposited to the credit of the testator in the Home National Bank of Ellenville, which deposit was apparently made by him. On his arrival home in the evening he stated that he had made his will.

About two months previous to the execution of this will, testator had stated to Myron C. Fuller, both of whom had since died; and that it was his intention to make a new will so as to have living witnesses thereto.

He had been married to the respondent and had lived with her over fifty years and had no children. Her care and management of the household, undoubtedly, contributed in a large measure to the accumulation of the property left by testator. His confidence in her, and his solicitude for her welfare, was evidenced by the fact that he had years before made a will in her favor, and also by the fact that he had at different times opened savings bank accounts in his name in trust for her. She was old and almost blind and should have been and no doubt was the dearest person to him on earth. It does not appear that he ever corresponded with any of them, or that he ever heard from or knew of the existence of some of them.

Upon the facts shown I am of the opinion that testator was competent to make a will on July 10, 1911.

Milady's Mirror

Sparkling Eyes.

If you want sparkling eyes you must study these important health essentials. Your eyes will not look bright if you don't keep well. Sitting in stuffy rooms all day long with the windows hermetically closed, eating things that don't agree with you, neglecting to take exercise of any kind at all—this going against the health laws—will make your eyes dull and heavy.

If you care for your health take regular walks, eat food that agrees with you and have your rooms well ventilated day and night. Besides, you will be doing not only much toward the attainment of health, but of eye beauty as well. There is nothing that makes the eyes sparkle like perfect health.

Orange juice works wonders in making the eyes bright. Perhaps that is because this wholesome fruit is so good for the liver. Try taking a wine-glassful of orange juice every morning upon rising. There is nothing like it for brightening the eyes.

Never neglect sore eyes and red lids. The latter are fatal to eye beauty. When your eyes feel strained bathe them night and morning with an eye-cupful of water in which a pinch of boracic powder has been dissolved. Be careful to dry the lids afterward though, with a piece of clean cotton wool.

Bathing in salt and water is very good for red lids. You should try it if you have never done so.

For a Sallow Skin.

If you find that one of your prettiest gowns has ceased to be becoming because of a newly developed tendency to sallowness add baked lemons to your diet and practice faithfully each night and morning the following exercise:

Stand with heels together. Now advance the left foot so that the heel is somewhat in advance of the toe of the right. Raise the hands above the head, palms facing forward, and, turning the body at the waist, throw the arms out and down to touch the floor at the right side.

Repeat ten times; then advance the right foot and attempt to touch the floor at the left side. Never mind if you cannot touch it the first trial; it may be weeks before you succeed, but in the meantime the color will be coming back to your cheeks.

Aromatic Tooth Paste.

This recipe for a tooth paste will be found useful in ordinary cases, but if you have allowed the tartar to remain on the teeth for some time it will be necessary for you to go to your dentist and have him remove the same for you. Do not let it stay on, for it will surely cause the teeth to decay.

For the paste take orris root powder, eight ounces; myrrh powder, eight ounces; oil of cloves, two drams, oil of lemon, two drams, and oil of rose, thirty drops, with solution of carmine sufficient to color and honey enough to form paste.

You can use the tooth paste for the ordinary cleansing of the teeth.

Hardening the Gums.

Peroxide of hydrogen will be found a great help in keeping the gums firm and healthy. It should be held in the mouth until it foams a little. It is antiseptic and will kill the many varieties of bacilli that infect the mouth and throat.

Children should be taken to a dentist at least twice a year and oftener when new teeth are coming. They should be taught to use dental floss after each meal. They should not be allowed to use soft toothpicks nor to pick the teeth with pins or metal of any sort. All crooked teeth should be straightened and the mouth kept sweet and clean by constant attention.

Skin Like Velvet.

A velvet bath is merely one that gives to the complexion the softness of velvet and tones up the skin to perfection. Velvet baths make the face glow and are delightful aids to beauty.

The materials are simple. One only requires finely powdered pumice stone, plenty of rough towels and brushes of all kinds.

If the bather has rough and coarse elbows fine sandpaper is used to massage them. First the arms are washed in soap and water, then sandpapered gently and afterward rubbed with olive oil or coconut butter.

Strengthening the Eyes.

An eye wash that will be found very helpful for weak eyes is the following: Take pure boric acid, one teaspoonful; camphor water, fifteen drops; boiling water, two-thirds of a cupful. If your eyes are in need of an oculist's attention it is advisable for you to consult one before the trouble grows worse and harder to cure. Do not read when your eyes burn and smart.

Banishing Warts.

Warts, so it is claimed, may be removed with an eradicant which is made of the following ingredients: Sublimed sulphur, 120 grains; glycerin, 5 fluid drams; acetic acid, 1 fluid dram. Apply repeatedly to each wart, continuing the treatment for several days. The warts dry up and then drop off.

Point the Culprit.

Dr. Kennedy, a former head master of Shrewsbury school, has a keen sense of humor. One year, on April 1, an audacious schoolboy put the school clock forward, and the chapel bell was rung an hour too soon. The culprit duly received the alarming order to come to the head master's room a little before noon.

Preparations were made for the usual form of punishment. The cane whizzed in the air, but, bracing his nerves to meet its descent the victim found himself untouched. A second time he heard it swung with sound and fury, yet it signified nothing. The boy was still trembling for the third stroke when he heard the master's voice:

"Go away, you April fool!"—London Answers.

The Coldest Hour.

The proverb which tells us that "the darkest hour is that before dawn" is inaccurate, for light increases in the morning as gradually as it decreases in the evening. The saying should be "the coldest hour," etc., which is perfectly true and is owing to causes connected with the deposit of dew. Hoarfrosts, too, usually take place just before daylight and are an additional cause of the peculiar chilliness of this time.—London Mail.

What the Old Man Feared.

The head of a certain Washington family was recently approached by his son just nearing his majority. "Father," said he, "I want to have a talk with you concerning my future. I have decided to become an artist. Have you any objections?"

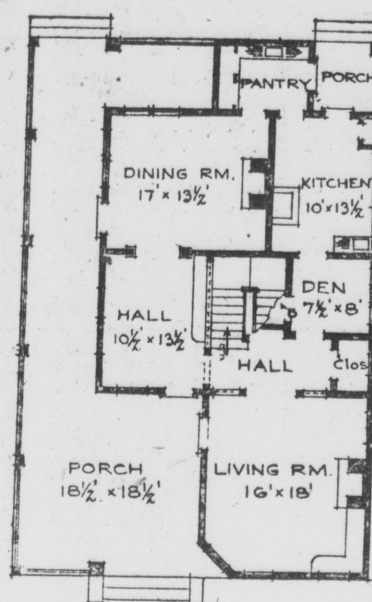

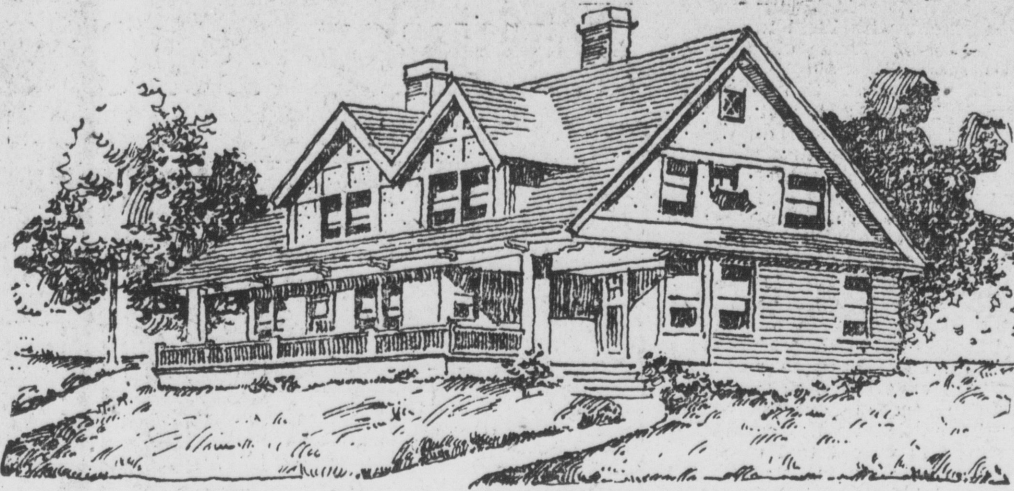

The old man scratched his head reflectively and replied:

"Well, no, son—provided, of course, that you don't draw on me."—Lippincott's.

RECORD FOR BURKETT

MANAGER OF WORCESTER TEAM
LONG IN HARNESS.

As Member of Cleveland Club He Led
National League Batters in 1895 and 1896, and Topped the List
With St. Louis in 1901.

With the opening of the season in the New England league recently, Manager Jesse Burkett started on his twenty-eighth consecutive year as a baseball player. As pilot of the Worcester team Burkett dons the spangles regularly, and, though he doesn't participate in every game, he plays often enough to get his name in the records for the season.

Since Jim O'Rourke made his final retirement from the diamond to become president of the Eastern league the record for continuous service on the ball field doubtless belongs to Burkett.

Jesse Burkett was born in Wheeling, W. Va., December 4, 1870. At the age of sixteen he began playing professional ball at Scranton, Pa. Two years later he went to Worcester. Later he was traded to the New York Giants, who farmed him out to the Lincoln club of the Western league. In 1891 he was sold to Cleveland. He remained in the Ohio city until the amalgamation with St. Louis in 1899, and played with the St. Louis Cardinals through 1901. The next season found him a member of the newly formed American league club in the Mount City. In 1906 he joined the Boston American league club. A year later he bought an interest in the Worcester club, and has acted as manager of the team ever since.

During his long career as a big leaguer Burkett established a reputation as one of the heaviest batters who ever faced a pitcher. As a member of the old Cleveland club he led the National league batters in 1895 and 1896, and again topped the list while playing with St. Louis in 1901.

The same success that attended Burkett's career as a major league player has marked his work as a minor league pilot. Since he took over the Worcester team eight years ago his team has never finished lower than third position in the New England league race. For four successive seasons his team captured the pennant.

Major league scouts have great faith in Burkett's ability to develop talent, and they seldom fail to be on hand early in the season to give the Worcester team the "once over." Some of the classy players he has developed the last few years have brought fancy prices when sold to clubs in faster company.

Burkett received his higher education in baseball in the rather difficult school afforded by the old National league in the '90s. The game was not run so smoothly in those days as now. The umpires exercised less control and a player was obliged to make good through his ability to fight his way to the finish. As a member of Pat Tebeau's old Cleveland team, reputed the scrappiest outfit of those fighting days, Burkett learned many tricks of the diamond.

IDOL OF THE BLEACHERITES

Joe Jackson Tosses a Ball to Fans in Right Field Seats at Sportsman's Park, St. Louis.

If it were left to a vote of the right field patrons at Sportsman's park, says a St. Louis writer, who is the greatest player in the American league, they would answer—Joe Jackson of Cleveland.

Since Joe became an idol of the bleacher patrons, his habit each day has been to toss a ball over to the boys just before the game. He did this trick every time he appeared in St. Louis last year and in 1912.

Joe Jackson.

A bleacherite howled: "Hey, Joe, where's de ball? Ain't you gonna give us one?"

Joe reached into his hip pocket and tossed a new ball into the seats. There was a wild scramble, and a little tot came up with the sphere clutched tightly in his hands.

Bob Escher a Star.

Followers of the Giants already look upon Robert Escher as a real star. Whenever this young man reaches first base the fun begins. He takes a big lead, worries the pitcher as much as possible, and when he starts he's a whirlwind. It requires a bullet throw to cut him down at the middle bag. Escher is playing better ball than in Cincinnati last season.

Sapleigh the Despised.

Kibby (at the party)—"Mr. Sapleigh has been hugging the wall all the evening. He's not exactly a wall flower, what would you call him?" Marie—"A wall 'nut'."

AMERICAN WOMAN CLOSE TO ROYALTY.

The Hon. Mrs. John Ward, with her son, Jack, from a recent photograph. Mrs. Ward was Miss Jean Reid, daughter of Whitelaw Reid, of New York, late ambassador to England. The late King Edward was godfather to her son. Mrs. Ward remained in seclusion for a period following the death of her father, but the beautiful young American has again taken her place among the prominent hostesses to royalty in London.

The next season found him a member of the newly formed American league club in the Mound City. In 1905 he joined the Boston American league club. A year later he bought an interest in the Worcester club, and has acted as manager of the team ever since.

During his long career as a big leaguer Burkett established a reputation as one of the heaviest batters who ever faced a pitcher. As a member of the old Cleveland club he led the National league batters in 1895 and 1896, and again topped the list while playing with St. Louis in 1901.

The same success that attended Burkett's career as a major league player has marked his work as a minor league pilot. Since he took over the Worcester team eight years ago his team has never finished lower than third position in the New England league race. For four successive seasons his team captured the pennant.

Major league scouts have great faith in Burkett's ability to develop talent, and they seldom fail to be on hand early in the season to give the Worcester team the "once over." Some of the classy players he has developed the last few years have brought fancy prices when sold to clubs in faster company.

Burkett received his higher education in baseball in the rather difficult school afforded by the old National league in the '90s. The game was not run so smoothly in those days as now. The umpires exercised less control and a player was obliged to make good through his ability to fight his way to the finish. As a member of Pat Tebeau's old Cleveland team, reputed the scrappiest outfit of those fighting days, Burkett learned many tricks of the diamond.

IDOL OF THE BLEACHERITES

Joe Jackson Tosses a Ball to Fans in Right Field Seats at Sportsman's Park, St. Louis.

If it were left to a vote of the right field patrons at Sportsman's park, says a St. Louis writer, who is the greatest player in the American league, they would answer—Joe Jackson of Cleveland.

Since Joe became an idol of the bleacher patrons, his habit each day has been to toss a ball over to the boys just before the game. He did this trick every time he appeared in St. Louis last year and in 1913.

Joe Jackson.

A bleacherite howled: "Hey, Joe, where's de ball? Ain't you gonna give us one?"

Joe reached into his hip pocket and tossed a new ball into the seats. There was a wild scramble, and a little tot came up with the sphere clutched tightly in his hands.

Bob Bescher a Stan. Followers of the Giants already look upon Robert Bescher as a real star. Whenever this young man reaches first base the fun begins. He takes a big lead, worries the pitcher as much as possible, and when he starts he's a whirlwind. It requires a bullet throw to cut him down at the middle bag. Bescher is playing better ball than in Cincinnati last season.

Sapleigh the Despoiled. Kibby (at the party)—"Mr. Sapleigh has been hugging the wall all the evening. He's not exactly a wall flower, what would you call him?" Marie—"A wall 'nut'."

AMERICAN WOMAN CLOSE TO ROYALTY.

The Hon. Mrs. John Ward, with her son, Jack, from a recent photograph. Mrs. Ward was Miss Jean Reid, daughter of Whitelaw Reid, of New York, late ambassador to England. The late King Edward was godfather to her son. Mrs. Ward remained in seclusion for a period following the death of her father, but the beautiful young American has again taken her place among the prominent hostesses to royalty in London.

MEDIATORS IN HOPEFUL MOOD

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Mediation Headquarters, Niagara Falls, Ont., June 9.—The American suggestions for effecting peace in Mexico were presented to the Huerta delegates than before that the rebel leader will finally agree to discussion of the subject while his spokesmen are present. Once in the conference the mediators believe that the Constitutionalists will feel themselves bound to stay until some plan of provisional rule of Mexico has been found acceptable. The idea that Carranza has yet surrendered either on the question of armistice or of refusal to accept a bi-partisan provisional government is scouted by men closely in touch with the negotiations.

The American delegates who are in constant communication with Washington, have not qualified their statement that the Antilla incident is closed, so far as this conference is concerned. Nevertheless they waited with marked anxiety for news of the arrival of the liner and its cargo of munitions at Tampico.

The Mexican delegates are understood to have received within the past 24 hours the definite pledge of General Huerta to accept whatever terms the delegates secure for him. He has placed himself wholly in their hands. The mediators take this act of General Huerta as a promise of early agreement upon the plan submitted by the American delegates. From now on their efforts will be chiefly directed to persuading Carranza to adopt the same course.

The American delegates are apparently convinced that the work will now go steadily forward to a real settlement of the troubles of Mexico and that this may be accomplished without further extensive military operations on the part of the rebels.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, June 9.—The list had an irregular appearance at the opening of the stock market today, but at the end of 20 minutes trading improvement was shown. The government crop report showing a bumper wheat crop this year was a strengthening factor. Although a hitch is reported to exist in the negotiations for the financial rehabilitation of the Missouri Pacific, this stock showed a loss of only 1/4. Amalgamated Copper began 1/4 lower but soon recovered and made a net gain of 1/4. U. S. Steel common commenced 1/4 higher, increasing this advance within the first few minutes. Union Pacific opened 1/4 higher, but soon augmented its net advance to 1/2. Southern Pacific moved in a similar way opening 1/4 higher after which it moved up still further. Consolidated Gas, Ray Consolidated Copper and Anaconda were lower. Among the other issues which scored fractional gains were American Car and Foundry, American Can, Goodrich and Reading. The curb was firm. Americans in London moved in a narrow range.

Levin-Engberman.

The Synagogue on Center street, Ellenville, was the scene of a very merry wedding festivities on Sunday afternoon at 6 o'clock, when Miss Sarah J. Engberman became the bride of Nathan Levin, Rabbi Denkat performing the ceremony, which was attended by much of wonder and surprise. It was the first wedding to be held in the Synagogue, which had been elaborately decorated with mountain laurel and greens for the occasion. Mance's orchestra furnished music. The Synagogue was filled to its doors with invited guests, friends of the contracting parties, which included not only Hebrew friends, but gentiles as well. The bride was gown in a beautiful dress of white satin with veil, while her several attendants also wore white. The groom wore the conventional black. After the ceremony the young couple and friend were taken by autos to the bride's home on Center street, where an elaborate wedding dinner was served, and the evening spent socially. The bride with her parents have been residents of the village for several years, and are well and favorably known. Mr. Levin holds a position in the new department store of Lechner's on Center street. Their many friends extend very hearty congratulations to the young people.

ATHLETICS WON TWO GAMES.

The Athletics of Pine Grove avenue defeated the fast English Lutheran team Saturday by the score of 5. Spalt and Cressler were the batteries for the Lutherans and J. McCord and J. Kraus were the opponents for the Athletics. The Athletics repeated the stunt Sunday by defeating the Valley Stars. The Valley Stars was composed of young men from all over the valley. It was no use because the Athletics hammered 16 runs to their 10. The batteries for the Stars were Sills, Ryan, Hartman and Schrieber. For the Athletics were Joe Heidcamp, W. Woerner and Kraus. The Athletics hit the three pitchers pretty hard, especially Cornelius Ryan.

A TALK WITH THE MOTHERS AND CHILDREN, IN FAVOR OF CARIS MILINERY DEPARTMENT.

We want you to know just how well we can fit you out for CHILDREN'S DAY. There is no other HOUSE in the city that pretends to keep one-half the assortment of children's headwear we do, we are studying them all the time to see how low price we can get up a nice hat for a child, only last week we bought an assortment in which the regular prices would have been 75 cents, this week they are already trimmed for 25 cents. Then you should see the pretty little HATS for 50c originally $1.00. Of course those for 97c $1.50 to $2.50 comparatively as good bargains. Even the little girls like the PANAMAS and we have them also. It has been difficult to get FINE HATS for small boys. We have them as good as a fine MILAN, $4.97 and from 25c to this price. We never wait until after the Fourth of July to reduce prices on our regular MILLINERY STOCK, the month of June is when the people want hats, and it's the time to reduce our stock. By this combination we seldom have but few left to burn when the season is over. Our prices above and below may seem like philanthropy but it is strictly business. UNTRIMMED SHAPES, black and colors, values up to $4.00, all 97c. TRIMMED DRESS HATS, ALL COLORS, values $5.00 to $10.00, all $2.97 and $4.97. SUFFRAGETTE KILLED BY DRUGS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, June 9.—A young woman who was found dead from drugs in her handsome furnished West End flat was identified today as the daughter of Mrs. Guthrie, a wealthy English matron. Miss Guthrie joined the militant suffragettes under the name of Laura Gray and took part in all the exciting window smashing raids of the "Furies." The excitement preyed upon her to such an extent that she became a drug-fiend to lessen the monotony of the periods when the suffragettes were not active. The floor of her flat was littered with bottles of veronal and other drugs.

MEDIATORS IN HOPEFUL MOOD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mediation Headquarters, Niagara Falls, Ont., June 9.—The American suggestions for effecting peace in Mexico were presented to the Huerta delegates than before that the rebel leader will finally agree to discussion of the subject while his spokesmen are present. Once in the conference the mediators believe that the Constitutionalists will feel themselves bound to stay until some plan of provisional rule of Mexico has been found acceptable. The idea that Carranza has yet surrendered either on the question of armistice or of refusal to accept a bi-partisan provisional government is scouted by men closely in touch with the negotiations.

The American delegates who are in constant communication with Washington are not qualified their statement that the Anzures incident is closed, so far as this conference is concerned. Nevertheless they waited with marked anxiety for news of the arrival of the liner and its cargo of munitions at Tampico.

The Mexican delegates are understood to have received within the past 24 hours the definite pledge of General Huerta to accept whatever terms the delegates may propose for him. He has placed himself wholly in their hands. The mediators take this act of General Huerta as a promise of early agreement upon the plan submitted by the American delegates. From now on their efforts will be chiefly directed to persuading Carranza to adopt the same course.

The American delegates are apparently convinced that the work will now go steadily forward to a real settlement of the troubles of Mexico and that this may be accomplished without further extensive military operations on the part of the rebels.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 9.—The list had an irregular appearance at the opening of the stock market today, but at the end of 20 minutes trading improvement was shown. The government crop report showing a bumper wheat crop this year was a strengthening factor. Although a hitch is reported to exist in the negotiations for the financial rehabilitation of the Missouri Pacific, this stock showed a loss of only 1/4. Amalgamated Copper began 1/4 lower but soon recovered and made a net gain of 1/4. U. S. Steel common commenced 1/4 higher, increasing this advance within the first few minutes. Union Pacific opened 1/4 higher, but soon augmented its net advance to 1/4. Southern Pacific moved in a similar way opening 1/4 higher after which it moved up still further. Consolidated Gas, Ray Consolidated Copper and Anaconda were lower. Among the other issues which scored fractional gains were American Car and Foundry, American Can, Goodrich and Reading. The curb was firm. Americans in London moved in a narrow range.

Miss Marguerite Van Keuren entertained at her home, 81 Foxhall avenue, on Monday evening, from 5 to 8 o'clock in honor of her twelfth birthday. Twelve little friends were present, including the Misses Theresa Nichols, Mary Finley, Emma Schoonmaker, Helen Gallagher, Isabel Mulhern, Mabel Waldron, Dorothy Anderson, Louise Garrison, Ruth Stratton, Kathryn Schell, Agnes Dunn and Elizabeth Morgan. Miss Gallagher favored with several selections and games were played. All had a delightful time.

Levin-Engberman.
The Synagogue on Center street, Ellenville, was the scene of a very merry wedding festivities on Sunday afternoon at 6 o'clock, when Miss Sarah J. Engberman became the bride of Nathan Levin, Rabbi Denkat performing the ceremony, which was attended by much of wonder and surprise. It was the first wedding to be held in the Synagogue, which had been elaborately decorated with mountain laurel and greens for the occasion. Mance's orchestra furnished the music. The Synagogue was filled to its doors with invited guests, friends of the contracting parties, which included not only Hebrew friends, but gentiles as well. The bride was gowned in a beautiful dress of white satin with veil, while her several attendants also wore white. The groom wore the conventional black. After the ceremony the young couple and friends were taken by autos to the bride's home on Center street, where an elaborate dinner was served, and the evening spent socially. The bride with her parents have been residents of the village for several years, and are well and favorably known. Mr. Levin holds a position in the new department store of Lechner's on Center street, so they are to reside in Ellenville. Their many friends extend very hearty congratulations to the young people.

SUFFRAGETTE KILLED BY DRUGS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 9.—A young woman who was found dead from drugs in her handsome furnished West End flat was identified today as the daughter of Mrs. Guthrie, a wealthy English matron. Miss Guthrie joined the militant suffragettes under the name of Laura Gray and took part in all the exciting window smashing raids of the "furies."

St. Louis, June 9.—Armando Marsans, has made good his threat to join the Federal League, according to a statement here today. The recalcitrant Cincinnati player is said to have signed a three year contract with the Federals, his salary to be $21,000 for the three years. Marsans' ten day notice to the Reds expires Friday.

Joplin, Mo., June 9.—Carl Morris, of Oklahoma, was in a serious condition today as a result of a foul blow struck in the ninth round of his fight here last night with Jim Flynn, the Colorado fireman. The referee stopped the mugging and declared Morris the winner. Morris had given Flynn a bad beating.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 9.—With both boys in fit condition, all is in readiness for tonight's battle for the bantamweight championship of the world between Johnny Coulton, the title holder and "Kid" Williams of Baltimore. Betting was 19 to 7 with Williams the favorite. Coulton today claimed that he was under 115 pounds, which is the notch the boys must make at ring-side. Williams, who undoubtedly has had a tougher time in reducing than Coulton also announced that he would have no trouble in making 116 pounds.

Keep Cheerful.

EMERICK BAIL
REDUCED TO $2,500

In county court on Monday afternoon Clarence E. Emerick was arraigned and entered a plea of not guilty to an indictment of manslaughter in the second degree, and he also entered the same plea to the second count in the indictment charging him with assault in the second degree. It will be remembered that on April 18 of this year Emerick and Oscar Bishop got into an argument in Cook's hotel near the West Shore crossing on Broadway and were put out of the cafe and continued the argument on the sidewalk. Bishop sustained a fractured skull and died a few hours later in the hospital and Emerick was held by Recorder Grogan to await the action of the grand jury and was allowed his freedom by furnishing bail in the sum of $5,000. Frank W. Brooks, of Rose & Brooks, appeared for Mr. Emerick on Monday and stated that he thought this bond excessive and the court granted his request that the bail be reduced and placed it at $2,500. Former Assemblyman George W. Washburn and Mrs. Edward Cashin continued on Emerick's bond. At the request of Mr. Brooks, the case went over to the September term.

At the request of former Mayor Irwin, attorney for Joseph Perri, indicted for violation of the liquor ordinance in selling on Sunday, the case went over to the September term. Perri was released under bond of $1,000 furnished by John Hauck and Sam Perri. Joseph runs a saloon on North street.

The trial of Frank Guadagnolo, indicted for keeping a disorderly house on Meadow street, was put over to the September term at the request of City Judge N. Frank O'Reilly, his attorney. Guadagnolo was released under $1,000 bond furnished by Abram Handler and Isaac A. Abramson.

For Your Plants.

Instead of buying expensive jardinières for your potted plants, simply paint the ordinary flower pots and saucers with a flat oil paint in a color to harmonize with the color scheme of the room they are in. Flower pots painted a green-blue or a Chinese blue are wonderfully quaint and decorative.

SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 9.—Charles Reed died the other day, but the memory of his 50 years of helpful connection with the turf history of America will live for always.

It was Reed who first recognized that Saratoga, N. Y., was one of the garden spots of the world. It was he who boosted most for Saratoga and it was his money that helped to make Saratoga one of the greatest racing centers in the world. Reed was once part owner of the famous Saratoga Club, and his $100,000 home in the quaint little New York town was one of the finest in the country.

But the thing that made Reed more famous than anything else was the fact that in 1891, at an auction sale he bid the unprecedented price of $100,000 for a race horse, although a $60,000 bid probably would have given him ownership of the horse, the stallion Sir Blaise.

The sale took place after the death of August Belmont, father of the present August Belmont, who is one of the foremost men in the racing game in America today. The executors of Belmont's estate placed most of the best horses in the Belmont stables on the auction block, and a crowd of nearly 5,000 jammed its way into the auction ring.

Sir Blaise, in those days, ranked as one of the greatest racing horses in the land. Many horsemen came prepared to bid a big figure for him—but Reed came to buy him. He had seen the horse in action. He had fondled and petted him after many of his wonderful races and he had come to love the animal.

After Bill Easton, the auctioneer, eulogized the horse he was led into the ring for inspection. Then Easton asked for bids.

"$25,000," spoke up a voice at Easton's left.

"$35,000," cried another and before Easton could ask for another bid a voice made it "$40,000." For a few moments this bid stood high and then came a $45,000 offer followed in a few minutes by a $50,000. The crowd gasped a bit—$50,000 in those days for a race horse looked like a tremendous lot of money.

And then, just as it seemed as if the $50,000 bidder would become the owner of the great stallion, a voice far in the rear boomed forth:

"My bid is $100,000."

It was the voice of Reed. The crowd seemed stunned. A bid of this amount was an unheard of thing—an act that it seemed could be committed only by a crazy man. The crowd forgot all else in its amazement over Reed's bid, and Reed immediately became the cynosure of every pair of eyes in the room. Even Easton was dazed, but in a minute or so he found control of his voice, and looking around the room, said haughtily:

"Gentlemen, are there any other offers? $100,000 has been bid for this horse. It's the greatest bid in the history of the American turf. Here you all done? All done? The stallion Sir Blaise is sold to Mr. Charles Reed for the heretofore unheard of price of $100,000."

Amid the wildest cheers, Reed stepped forward, paid over the $100,000 and triumphantly led his horse out into the open and fondled him. Some of his friends came forward and asked him:

"Charlie, why did you to $100,000 all in one jump? If you'd have bid $55,000 or $60,000 you probably would have gotten him and saved the extra $40,000 or $45,000."

"Perhaps I would," responded Reed. "But I wanted this horse, and I wouldn't cheapen him by bidding in nickels to get him. I probably haven't got as much money as most of the turfmen these days, but I've got enough to pay the price for a horse that I want. I wouldn't take $150,000 for the horse right this minute."

Reed was about 90 years old when he died. He left but little of the several million dollars that he made during his 50 years of active connection with the racing game. With him it was a case of "easy come, easy go." His hands always were in his pocket for the purpose of extracting from it some of his bankroll to give some needy friends. No one ever appealed to Reed for help in vain.

Reed was known as one of the best losers in the history of the turf. Time and again he lost heavily, but he took his losses with a smiling countenance, and a philosophy that made him famous.

"You can't always win, boys," he used to say. "And who wants to win all the time. If a fellow didn't lose every so often the business of winning would get monotonous. By losing every so often a fellow gets to appreciate his luck in winning all the more."

Cat Reasoned Wisely.

Romances quotes a remarkable story about a cat's reasoning power. While a paraffin lamp was being trimmed, some of the oil fell on the back of the cat, and a cinder from the fire shortly afterward touching it, the fur became ignited. The cat instantly made for the door and, running up the village street, plunged into the watering trough. She had seen her human friends at home put out their kitchen fire with water, and she must have reasoned from this fact.

Her Reason.

Little Emma Blaise—"I wish you and papa would get divorced." Her Mother—"Divorced? Why, dear?" Little Emma Blaise—"Little Myrtle Wayrup's papa and mamma are, and she sees each of them six months in the year, and I don't see you and papa at all."—Puck.

EMERICK BAIL REDUCED TO $2,500

In county court on Monday afternoon Clarence E. Emerick was arraigned and entered a plea of not guilty to an indictment of manslaughter in the second degree, and he also entered the same plea to the second count in the indictment charging him with assault in the second degree. It will be remembered that on April 18 of this year Emerick and Oscar Bishop got into an argument in Cook's hotel near the West Shore crossing on Broadway and were put out of the cafe and continued the argument on the sidewalk. Bishop sustained a fractured skull and died a few hours later in the hospital and Emerick was held by Recorder Grogan to await the action of the grand jury and was allowed his freedom by furnishing bail in the sum of $5,000. Frank W. Brooks, of Rose & Brooks, appeared for Mr. Emerick on Monday and stated that he thought this bond excessive and the court granted his request that the bail be reduced and placed it at $2,500. Former Assemblyman George W. Washburn and Mrs. Edward Cashin continued on Emerick's bond. At the request of Mr. Brooks, the case went over to the September term.

At the request of former Mayor Irwin, attorney for Joseph Perri, indicted for violation of the liquor ordinance in selling on Sunday, the case went over to the September term. Perri was released under bond of $1,000 furnished by John Hauck and Sam Perri. Joseph runs a saloon on North street.

The trial of Frank Guadagnolo, indicted for keeping a disorderly house on Meadow street, was put over to the September term at the request of City Judge N. Frank O'Reilly, his attorney. Guadagnolo was released under $1,000 bond furnished by Abram Handler and Isaac A. Abramson.

We tell the big, brawny men of this country that LIBERTY is the best tobacco for them on the market and they know they can bank on that statement.
